GRADUATION EXERCISES OF VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

Interesting Demonstration of Several Lines of Work—Address
by Mrs. Stannard

With elaborate exercises twenty-five graduates were presented their diplomas at the girls' vocational school this forenoon, the class being the largest in the history of the school. Present at the exercises were Mayor O'Donnell, who presented the diplomas; Supt. Hugh J. Molloy of the school department, who introduced the principal speaker, Thomas F. Fisher, principal of the school, who presided over the exercises; Dr. John H. Lambert, chairman of the school committee, and Mrs. Margaret J. Stannard, director of the Garland School of Homemaking of Boston, who delivered the principal address. The exercises were held in a class room and admission was by card, only the immediate relatives of the graduates having been invited. The program was both enjoyable and instructive, for several phases of the work taught at the school were demonstrated by the pupils, this including a demonstration of modeling, millinery, wall covering and table service. The graduates were neatly attired in white and each carried a large bouquet. The exercises opened with a march entitled "With Might and Main" by Borjes' orchestra, which supplied music for the occasion, and the next number was a brief address of welcome by Principal Fisher.

EUROPEAN WAR NEWS

Long Threatened Concerted Attack by Entente Allies is in Preparation—More Ships Sunk

The Teutonic stand against the Russians southeast of Kovel is being firmly maintained. In defending this vital railway junction point the Germans continue to deliver heavy attacks. Berlin today reports a successful assault on the Russian lines southwest of Skul, where the Russians have made their nearest approach to Kovel. The ground gained was held against all counter attacks. The incessant heavy shelling of the German lines from the front in Belgium to a point south of the Somme by British and French artillery is continuing, giving color to a widely held belief that an allied offensive is in prospect. The allied forces have been making a concerted activity along this front, and numerous gas and smoke clouds have been let loose by the entente forces.

Successes for French
At Verdun, Paris reports French successes in local operations near the Thiaumont works, north of the citadel where the recent German drive resulted in a gain of considerable ground. Berlin denies that the French have reaped any advantage from these attacks.

Concerted Attack
Today's despatches give little indication of the general course of events within the past few hours along the Franco-Belgian front, where the British artillery has been notably active for two or three days. The latest reports from both Berlin and London, however, lend color to the somewhat prevalent belief that the long-threatened concerted attack by the entente allies on the various fronts is in preparation, if not in actual process of execution.

More Ships Torpedoed
Operations by Teutonic submarines are being continued in the Mediterranean, where the British steamer Cardiff and the French steamer Fournel have been sunk by an under-sea boat.

In Turkish Armenia
Constantinople reports successes in Turkish Armenia where the Russians in some sectors north of the river Tchouk are said to be retreating toward the Black seacoast after a defeat at the hands of the Turks.

TWO AUSTRIAN TROOP SHIPS SUNK IN DURAZZO HARBOR
ROME, June 27.—Two Austrian transports have been sunk in the harbor of Durazzo by the Italians. The transports were loaded with troops, arms and ammunition.

Official communication regarding the sinking says:
"Italian warships entered Durazzo harbor on the night of the 25th and sank two steamers, one of 5000 tons and the other of 3000 tons, laden with arms and munitions."

The warships returned without loss to their base, notwithstanding the heavy fire of the enemy.

tel here tomorrow night, it was learned today.
Only the candidate and Col. Roosevelt, it was stated, will be present at the dinner which will be held in Mr. Hughes' apartment.

WIGGIN'S TAR KETTLE BLAZED
An alarm from box 121 at noon today summoned a portion of the fire department to the corner of Western avenue and Thorndike street where a tar kettle caught fire. The blaze, however, was extinguished before any material damage was done. The Burton H. Wiggin Co. was tarring the roof of the George L. Cady building when the kettle in which the tar was being heated caught fire.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—A small army of workmen today began to fill a rush order for 20,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition at one of the government arsenals here.

WAR IF FIRST CHIEF FAILS TO RELEASE AMERICANS

If Cavalrymen Captured at Carrizal are Not Released Within 48 Hours Action Will Be Taken by United States — Troops Being Rushed to Border to Back Up Gen. Funston's Regulars—President Wilson to Ask Congress for the Power to Act—Delays Help United States Army

WASHINGTON, June 27.—There were clear indications today that if American cavalrymen captured by Mexican troops at Carrizal were not released within 48 hours, action would be taken by the United States.

The impression prevailed in official circles that President Wilson would not wait beyond Thursday at the latest and possibly not beyond tomorrow afternoon for a definite reply from the Carranza government to the note demanding the immediate release of the prisoners and a declaration of intentions.

Delivered Note to Carranza
Special Agent Rodgers at Mexico City reported in an over-night message received early today, that he had delivered the note to the Mexican foreign office yesterday morning. He did not indicate how it had been received or when a reply might be expected.

Rush Mobilization
While the diplomatic aspects of the crisis awaited Carranza's action, the war department drove forward its efforts to hasten mobilization of the National Guard on the border. It is certain that no aggressive military operations can be undertaken until a substantial number of state troops is available to back up Gen. Funston's regulars who unquestionably would lead any movement.

Wilson to Ask Power
President Wilson's first step, should he decide to force the issue, probably would be to lay the whole situation before congress in joint session. It is believed he so informed members of the foreign relations committee of both houses in his conference with them on Sunday night.

Specific authority under which the National Guard could be employed beyond the border and also authorization for calling out volunteers would be needed.

Forced Into Military Action
It is regarded as certain also that any resolution presented for action would include a reaffirmation of the position of the administration that it is being forced into military action for the defense of its own territory from outlaws, and has no purpose of territorial aggrandizement.

Expect Carranza to Give In Mexican officials here have expressed the opinion that Carranza would surrender the American prisoners, whatever reply he might make to the demand for a diplomatic expression of his purposes.

The state department has had no official report tending to confirm this view.

Delay Helps U. S. Army
Every day's delay in what seems the inevitable break in relations with the Mexican government sees the army in better position for the swift action that may follow.

Troops Entraining for Border
Advices from Gen. Funston's headquarters indicate that trains loaded with state troops are sweeping southward today from many parts of the country. Additional regiments are entraining or receiving the last necessary equipment.

Supplies for Soldiers
At the war department and in congress, hurried measures are being taken to provide supplies promptly for the army ordered to the border.

Consular advices during the day from the few state department representatives in Mexico reported quiet in the vicinity of their posts.

CAPT. MOREY NOT TO LEAVE MEXICO NOW
AUSTIN, Tex., June 27.—In answer to a telegram sent to Capt. L. S. Morey yesterday inquiring as to his condition and where he could join him, Mrs. Morey received the following:

"Somewhere in Mexico, via Columbus, N. M. Am not coming out of Mexico now. Am very well."

"Sydney," Mrs. Morey is of the opinion that on account of the hot weather and rough roads, Capt. Morey will remain in a temporary hospital on the Pershing line until he has sufficiently recovered to make the trip out.

THOUSANDS OF TROOPS ARE READY TO ENTRAIN
WASHINGTON, June 27.—While the United States awaited today the final word from Gen. Carranza that will determine whether there is to be peace or war, thousands of National Guardsmen all over the country were ready to entrain for the border to reinforce Gen. Funston's command for any operations developments may make necessary.

Secretary Lansing yesterday prevented even formal proposal of mediation by telling Minister Calderon of Bolivia that the American government believes nothing in the situation is subject to arbitration. Gen. Carranza previously had accepted "in principle" the offer to mediate.

MASSACHUSETTS TROOPS NEARING THE BORDER

Four Regiments of Infantry, a Hospital Company and an Ambulance Corps on Way to Front

FRAMINGHAM, June 27.—Massachusetts before noon today had started toward the troubled southern border four regiments of infantry, equipped for action, a hospital company and an ambulance corps. The van of this movement, the "Fighting Ninth" regiment, with Brig. Gen. E. Leroy Sweetser accompanying, was 12 hours on its way to El Paso at that hour. The cavalry and field artillery organizations, delayed by details concerning their mounts and a corps of signal men were preparing to move before midnight, concluding the state's first contribution of approximately 4800 troops.

The forward movement was accomplished only after several delays, affecting most of the organizations. Men of the Eighth regiment, the Fifth regiment, and the ambulance and hospital organizations slept where they could during the night, on station platforms, under wagons, on residential lawns, or by the roadside, awaiting relief from the glut of equipment which crowded railroad stations.

At Camp Whitney, which the infantry abandoned yesterday there sprang up today a training school for recruits left here to be put into condition for service at the front later.

$5,000 NATIONAL GUARD TROOPS ON WAY TO BORDER
NEW YORK, June 27.—Nearly 35,000 National Guard troops from 11 states in the department of the east are under orders to start today for the Mexican border or already are on the way. Three Massachusetts regiments and two batteries of field artillery, from New Jersey started during the night. Indications are that about 50,000 troops from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont will get away before tonight.

In addition, troops from Maine, New Hampshire, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia and Florida, totaling about 15,000 men, had received orders from Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood to leave today for the border.

Six thousand National Guard troops of New York, comprising the Seventh, Seventy-first, Fourteenth and Forty-seventh regiments of infantry and a battalion of engineers together with auxiliary signal corps, field hospital and ambulance commands, are ready to leave as soon as transportation is provided, which probably will be some time today.

All are ordered to Brownsville, Tex. Connecticut had her 1500 troops ready to start at an early hour and Vermont was ready with 1200 men.

The Seventh Infantry regiment, 1300 strong, left its armory this forenoon for Jersey City, there to entrain for the Mexican border. This was the first of New York state's militia units to get under way.

Maj. Gen. O'Ryan today ordered the re-organization of the Sixty-fifth Infantry regiment of Buffalo into a heavy field artillery regiment which will be the only one of its kind in the National militia.

Capt. Daniel W. Hand of the United States field artillery has been placed in command of the regiment as colonel and Capt. Sherman Miles, son of the lieutenant general, Nelson A. Miles, U.S.A., retired, will be lieutenant colonel.

SIXTH REGIMENT BAND

THEY ARE CALLED TO FRAMINGHAM TO TAKE THE FEDERAL OATH
Chief Musician Z. I. Bissonnette of the Sixth Regiment band received orders this noon to report at South Framingham some time today or tomorrow for the purpose of taking the federal oath. The members of the band will hold a meeting at 8 o'clock this evening at their headquarters in the state armory and decide as to the time they will go to South Framingham tomorrow.

TO LIFT EMBARGO ON HIDES
WASHINGTON, June 27.—Secretary Lansing today promised a committee representing various branches of the shoe and leather industries he would endeavor to have lifted the embargo placed upon raw hides by Russia and other European powers. The committee told Mr. Lansing that solely because of the embargo, shoes already had advanced an average of a dollar a pair and that the price was likely to go higher. They said the hides most needed were calfskins which were of no particular use for military purposes.

RATES TOO HIGH

Employers Likely to Pull Away From the Compensation Law

Special to The Sun
STATE HOUSE, June 27.—Many Massachusetts employers are likely to get out from under the workmen's compensation law and take their chances under the common law in case of injury to their employees, unless the rates charged for workmen's compensation insurance are made lower. This was the opinion expressed yesterday by Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the industrial accident board, before the recess committee of the legislature which today began a study of the whole question of rate-making under the compensation act.

On May 1st new rates went into effect in this state; now let us see just how these new rates are going to affect the textile industry, for example, with its 165,000 employees. Under the old schedule, employers in this industry paid $273,000 a year for their insurance; under the new schedule they will have to pay $307,000.

Counsel for the Cotton Manufacturers' association told me only a few days ago that the rate under the old employers' liability law was 17 cents on each $100 of payroll; manufacturers in New Bedford and Fall River have figured that the rate under the new compensation act and obtain their insurance under the common law at a rate of 40 to 45 cents, instead of the 65 they now have to pay under the compensation act.

"If the rates are to be so high that employers are likely to go out from under the act in the way of accident insurance, unfortunately our act in this state is not compulsory as it should be, and as I hope the constitutional convention will make it."

"Previous to May first the textile manufacturers were paying a 35-cent rate, and 26 cents was being returned to the injured employee. That rate manifestly was not high enough, but there is room to doubt whether the 65 cents is not too high. In boots and shoes there is a 25-cent rate, and of that only 12 cents goes back to injured workmen."

"I am convinced that a great deal can be done in the way of accident prevention, and it certainly ought to be done, because during the past three years there have been at all times five thousand persons out of employment because of injuries; that means a great economic loss. We have been under a handicap in accident prevention work, because the employer who installed every known safety device was required to pay just the same rate as the man in the same industry who did nothing at all for the safety of his employees. Now we have a merit rating system, and I believe it will accomplish much, but after all personal care is the great preventive of accidents, and of far more value than safety devices. The personal care is not all on the side of the employee, either; last year we had 1000 accidents caused by falls on stairs, and it is safe to estimate that half of those would have been prevented if the employer had installed treads on his stairs.

"The question of physical examination of employees is another which must be given serious consideration. At the present time there are at least four great corporations in Massachusetts which are examining every employee, and hiring none but the physically fit, simply because the courts have ruled that a person who is injured while at work is entitled to compensation, even though his heart, for example, was in such condition that he would have died with an exertion, such as tying his shoes. Unless the legislature provides that such persons shall not come under the compensation act, employers are going to refuse to employ them, and we shall soon have a serious situation. They might be required to seek compensation at common law and then obtain it if the employer was at fault, but to require industry to pay $4000 on account of a death for which it is not responsible is entirely foreign to every theory of the compensation law."

POSTOFFICE CHANGES

REORGANIZATION TO EFFECT THE CHANGE IN THE FINANCIAL ARRANGEMENTS

The reorganization plan in postoffices throughout the country which is going into effect on July 1 will make several changes in the local postoffice. As a result of careful inspection all of the first class offices are being reorganized on an efficiency basis.

Several months ago two federal inspectors, Messrs. Swift and Pendleton, paid a visit to this city, and as a result of their report the Lowell office will be reorganized on the plan embracing two divisions, one on finance and the other on mails.

According to the new plan the postmaster becomes supervisor of finance, the assistant postmaster, Edwards Cheney, becomes postal cashier at the present salary of $1700; William M. Burns, special clerk, assumes the duties of bookkeeper, a new designation at the present salary, $1300; John J. Murphy becomes money order cashier at a salary of $1300, an increase of $100; Edwin H. Cook, superintendent of mails, will continue to look after this department at the same salary, $1500, and Joseph T. Meehan becomes foreman of mails at $1200, an increase of $100. The position of superintendent of delivery has been abolished in all offices.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

"Betty of Graystone," a real romance of New England, and a Fine Arts film in five acts, with a very strong cast of actors in it, is the principal feature of the program of pictures at the B. F. Keith theatre, the first three days of the present week. Audiences yesterday liked the picture much, for Dorothy Gish, who is one of the big favorites of picturegoers, appeared in the leading role, and the story of the play holds so many unusual features that interest is sustained throughout.

Second only to pretty Miss Gish is Owen Moore, who, in real life, is the husband of Mary Pickford. Among the others are George Fawcett, a prime Broadway star, and a very fine character actor, and Eugene Ormonde, an actor who has done splendid work on the legitimate stage. Kid McCoy, a former pugilist, also appears in a decidedly good character work.

The story of "Betty of Graystone" is of New England, or that rugged farming portion of it where many austere lives are lived. Betty had a lovable father and a decidedly cool, calculating and unlovable mother. The father, through lack of attention and hard work, and the mother, in due season, contracted a marriage with the laziest man in the whole section. Such a marriage did not augur well for Betty's future, for she had considerable of her father's traits, and the coming of a stepfather meant also the coming of two lubber stepbrothers.

In the neighborhood was a mansion, Graystone, which had been closed for many years, and in which reposed a magnificent library. It was owned by a wealthy youngster in New York, who came "on" once in a while just to look it over. Betty, with her wit and her hardiness, broke into the mansion one day, and was discovered there later by Chandler, the owner. He told her to take the key to the mansion, to visit it any time she saw fit, and then he went away.

Later Betty was discovered in the mansion, wearing a gorgeous dress. And Chandler, the owner, who had given her the dress, was found in the mansion also. Promptly the neighbors heard of the "fulfillment" of the prophecy that Betty was "wealthy" out of the town by the inhabitants, who, in their narrow minded way, had suspected awful things. Betty's mother died shortly afterwards, and Betty was taken to New York, where she became the ward of a wealthy woman. Incidentally, her college education resulted in the bringing together of a husband and wife who had long been estranged, and in the end, Chandler, the millionaire, steeled by his watching of Betty, proposed to her and was accepted, and the duo were very happily married. Little do they know that the romance is, it ends splendidly.

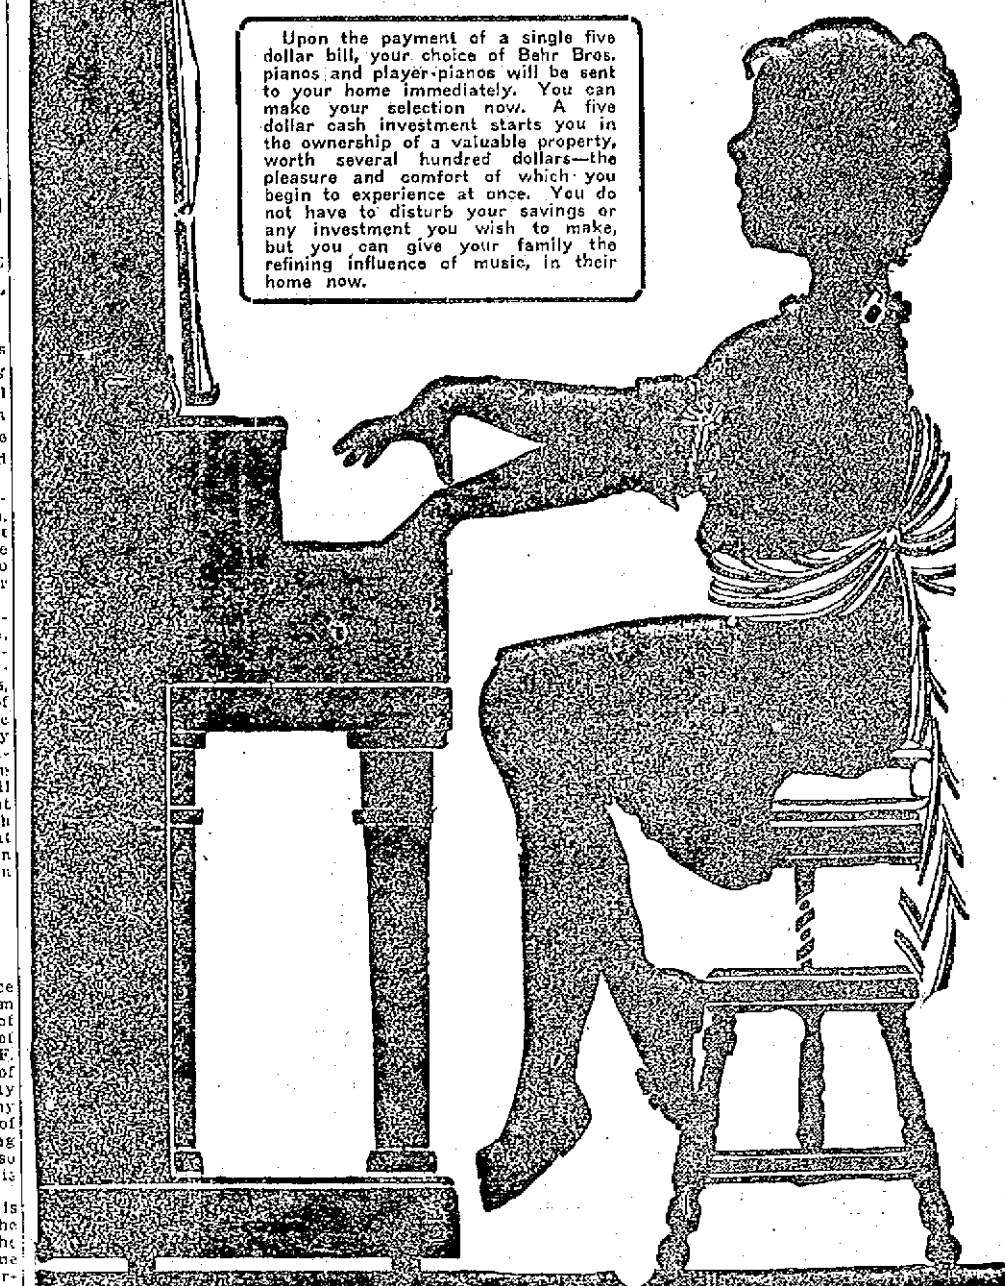

The photograph of this picture is on a par with the exquisite Fine Arts productions of the past.

"The Gathering Storm," the fifth chapter of "Gloria's Romance," in which Miss Edith Burke in the leading role, shows more interesting every week. In this chapter, actually proposed to Gloria, and is accepted by her, although her friends have done their best to prevent an engagement. Incidentally, a past chapter in the life of Gloria is revealed unexpectedly, and this revelation is bound to play a very important part in the ultimate unwinding of the story.

"Fatty and Mabel in the Bright Lights" brings out our old friends, Roscoe Arbuckle and Mabel Normand. And this is about as rollicking a picture as one will see anywhere. It opens up in a small town somewhere in the east, and travels very fast to New York, where the first half of this week. The concluding half of the week Douglas Fairbanks in "The Habit of Happiness" and Charles Murray in "The Bath House Mystery" will be the features.

MEHREMAC SQUARE THEATRE
In "The Cheat," the five act play in which Fanny Ward appeared at the Merrimack Sq. Theatre yesterday afternoon, and evening shows life in a continue to appear today and tomorrow at all the performances at this theatre, this talented star brings a full measure of talent into play. Her well chosen role is that of a gay, thoughtless social butterfly of a woman, whose extravagance and impulsive conduct lead to a grave family crisis, one of the most impressive climaxes seen in some time at this theatre. "The Cheat" is the other five act picture which is on the splendid Merrimack Square theatre program for the first half of this week. Those who saw this picture yesterday were greatly pleased with the strong his-

WE TOLD YOU fully in four ads. last week about this unusual sale of 125 Behr Bros. pianos. We told you of THE VALUE of the pianos. We told you of what care was taken in their selection.

NOW, TODAY, we tell of the GUARANTEE that has been put on these instruments.

Pianos have always been guaranteed. That is, they have been supposed to be guaranteed. But the guarantees, most of them, have been vague and evasive. They began nowhere—they went nowhere. There were loopholes in them. They were made up—very largely—of "ifs and ands."

But when this sale was planned, both the manufacturers and ourselves decided to get up a guarantee that meant something; to make a guarantee in FACT as well as in NAME.

Here it is; you can read it and judge for yourself. In our opinion it is the STRONGEST guarantee ever placed upon a piece of merchandise ANYWHERE or at ANY TIME. If you can write one stronger, we will gladly sign it.

OUR GUARANTEE

We, Behr Bros. & Co., and the undersigned seller, jointly guarantee PIANO No. — for the period of five years from date. Any defects in material or workmanship appearing within that time will be replaced with a new one of like grade, without cost, upon its return to the undersigned. (Signed)

THE BON MARCHE

This guarantee is our Bond of Confidence with the purchaser; the written signed evidence of our faith in the piano we are offering you.

SUMMING UP THE WHOLE PROPOSITION

Let us sum up this proposition. You get a Behr Bros piano, which has been made and sold for 35 years at three hundred and fifty to four hundred dollars, for two hundred and fifty-seven dollars. This is a saving to you of at least ninety-three dollars.

You pay five dollars when you select your piano, leaving two hundred and fifty-two dollars to be paid. To pay this balance, you are allowed one hundred and sixty-eight weeks' time. This makes the payments only one dollar and fifty cents a week. You can GET YOUR MONEY BACK after a thirty days' trial. If you keep the piano you can exchange it, without loss, at any time up to within one year from the day you bought it. Besides this, you get the protection of the strong joint guarantee above mentioned—PROTECT-

The initial payment necessary to obtain one of these pianos is FIVE DOLLARS. The five dollars is deducted from the price—two hundred and fifty-seven dollars—leaving TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY-TWO DOLLARS to be paid at the rate of ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS a week.

PROGRESSIVE NATIONAL COMMITTEE VOTES 32 TO 6 TO SUPPORT HUGHES FOR PRESIDENT

CHICAGO, June 27.—The progressive national committee last night voted to endorse Charles E. Hughes for president. The vote was 32 to 6, with nine declining to vote on the ground that the committee was exceeding its powers in taking such action.

The vote was reached after a lengthy session of the committee, following the reading of Col. Roosevelt's letter declining the nomination and urging Bull Moose support of Mr. Hughes.

After the colonel's letter had been read, Virgil C. Hineshaw, chairman of the national committee of the prohibition party, renewed his offer for the progressive party to amalgamate with the prohibition party. Former Governor Eugene H. Foss of Massachusetts, who is a candidate for president on the prohibition ticket, and Daniel A. Polling of Boston, temporary chairman of the prohibition national convention, were with Mr. Hineshaw.

The committee decided against opening the session to newspapermen John M. Parker led the fight for an open session and George W. Perkins opposed it. Mr. Perkins said he had "confidential information" for the committee from Mr. Hughes, outlining the position which the republican nominee takes on various questions.

PROSECUTION RESTS IN THE CASEMENT TRIAL

Atty. Sullivan Attempts to Have Indictment Quashed—Witnesses Tell of Sir Roger's Movements

LONDON, June 27.—The second day of the trial of Roger Casement for high treason opened with no change in the apathetic attitude with which the general public regards the case.

Although the chief justice of England is presiding over the trial and the prosecution is being conducted by the highest law officers of the crown, it seems to arouse but little popular interest.

The spectators of the trial, besides members of the bar, consist mostly of retired theatrical stars and men about town, who have no useful task to do elsewhere.

FASHIONS, or WOMAN'S HEALTH

The first thing many persons think of finding on the Woman's Page of a newspaper is the Fashions. That is not what women most need to find there. Health is the first thing, and many women lack it. Notes telling how to preserve the health are of the greatest value and interest for women; and, if they are suffering from the woman's ailments, they read with the most intense interest how other women got well from their ailments, and so they too get what made them well—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Casement himself seems to take the proceedings in a most casual manner. With folded arms or head resting on his hand, he has the air of being bored except when he chats with the policeman who sits around him in the iron-barred dock.

The prisoner appeared to be in a cheerful frame of mind as he entered the dock today.

The prosecution resumed the introduction of testimony immediately the court opened. The witnesses were the same as those called at the preliminary hearings at the Bow street police court and few new points were brought out during the early proceedings. Witnesses gave accounts of the movements of Casement and his companions, Capt. Robert Montell and Daniel J. Bailey, from the time of their landing on the morning of Good Friday in a boat from the German submarine near Tralee until the arrest of Sir Roger.

John McCarthy, an Irish farmer, described finding the boat in which the three men were said to have landed, and told of discovering buried on the beach two handbags containing revolvers and ammunition.

Rebel Ring in Court

Mary Gorman, a pretty servant girl with a pronounced Irish brogue, identified Sir Roger as one of the three men she met hurrying away from the beach early Friday morning. She was followed by Thomas Hearn, a sergeant in the Irish constabulary, who told of tracing Sir Roger to the ruined fort in the vicinity of which he arrested him. Sergt. Hearn identified revolvers, maps of Ireland and a flag of the revolutionists which were found in a handbag. There was a stir in the court room as the big green emblem of the rebels was shown out and all eyes turned towards the prisoner. He shifted uneasily in his seat and then leaned back with folded arms, smiling nervously.

Alexander Sullivan, chief counsel for the defense, volunteered the information to the court that the emblem on the flag was that of the city of Limerick.

Armed Themselves Against Ulster

Mr. Sullivan cross-examined the police witnesses at length in regard to the general arrest in Ireland and brought out the fact that the people of the south were arming themselves against those of the north and against conscription and that after the Curragh incident, when the military refused to fight against Ulster, the southerners felt they could not trust the soldiers to protect them against Ulster volunteers.

One police witness said that although the carrying of arms and drilling went on unhampered by the authorities, the landing of arms would have had a very grave effect.

Important Paper

During the testimony of Constable Riley, who assisted in the arrest of Sir Roger, the prosecution introduced as evidence a paper Sir Roger is said to have thrown away shortly after his arrest and on which a code was written. The paper was picked up and given to Riley. The prosecution has laid great stress on the importance of this code which it contends was intended for communication with Germans.

Opposite a series of numbers on this paper were sentences such as "send cannon and ammunition" and "send more explosives." The prosecution attempted to establish that some of the pencilled figures on this code were German characters.

Much of the testimony today was corroborative and showed events pertaining to Casement after his arrest.

How Aud Was Held Up

Having traced his movements until he was lodged in prison, the crown attorneys turned their attention to the ammunition ship Aud, which was sent from Kinsale to Ireland. Sir Roger, a horn, leading signal man on the British patrol boat Bluebell, told the oft-repeated story of as to how the Aud was held up on suspicion by the Bluebell off Tralee and how the crew of the Aud blew her up on hearing Queenstown. A diver was called to the aid and identified rifles and ammunition he found on the wrecked Aud.

20,000 Rifles for Rebels

It is claimed the steamship carried 20,000 rifles and a supply of ammunition for the rebels.

The prosecution laid emphasis on maps found in the handbags on the beach. Col. Gordon, a map expert, testified they were foreign reproductions of British ordnance maps.

The prosecution rested its case suddenly shortly after the luncheon recess, and the attorney general announced that he had no statement to make.

Mr. Sullivan immediately began an address in an attempt to have the indictment quashed. His argument was highly technical, being an effort to show that the alleged rebel acts were committed outside British waters and could not be tried in Great Britain.

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More

"To certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every experienced thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Most thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are, when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, much of the fat and flesh-producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat, the nutritive processes must be supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can probably best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is sold by the Lowell Pharmacy and other druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Robert W. Barris and Miss Lydia H. Shedd were united in marriage Saturday afternoon by Rev. Raymond G. Clapp at his home in Hanks street. The bride was Miss Anna E. GRADUATION EXERCISES

Continued

Miss Mae Cecilia McDonald, a graduate, gave a fine demonstration of modeling. Using a bust model she showed the various phases of putting a gown together from a large strip of tissue paper, explaining each move as she went through the process. When her tissue paper gown was finished, she produced a gown of real cloth which she made herself, and this proved to be a very handsome dress. The young woman was warmly applauded.

Following this number was a demonstration of millinery artistically given by Miss Theresa Cecilia McCarron. The latter had for models nine handsome young women. She had a number of hats at her disposal and while placing them upon the heads of her models, she explained what was becoming and what was not. She also told how colors should be selected in either making or purchasing a hat and her demonstration proved very interesting.

Another interesting number was that given by Miss Dorothy Avis Fish, who demonstrated wall covering. Miss Lena Anna Welch demonstrated how to do table service and it is fair to assume that she had a few mothers guessing. The young woman in the course of her demonstration told what should be done and what should not be done while setting a table and she suited the action to the word.

Supt. Molloy

Supt. Molloy of the school department was then called upon to introduce the speaker of the day and his introductory remarks proved very interesting. Mr. Molloy pictured the changes that have occurred in styles during the past century and incidentally he told a couple of anecdotes in reference to style. He also told of the good to be derived from a school such as the girls' vocational school and complimented the graduates as well as the teachers for the success obtained during the year. He then introduced Mrs. Margaret J. Stannard of Boston.

Mrs. Stannard

Mrs. Stannard, a speaker of rare ability, took for her subject "Education for Homemaking" and for over half an hour she entertained her listeners and particularly the graduates with her instructive remarks. The speaker gave an illustration of how the work of homemaking is being conducted at the Garland school and told of the success of the graduates after leaving the institution. She also spoke of the best methods to be adopted by the teachers in the course of their instruction. In closing she gave the graduates advice as to how to put in practice what they have learned at the vocational school.

The orchestra played another selection and this was followed by the presentation of the class gift which consisted of a beautiful large American flag and a handsome framed picture of the "Castle of St. Angelo" outside of Rome. The gift was accepted by Dr. J. H. Lambert, who took occasion to express his compliments to the graduating class.

Mayor O'Donnell

Mayor James E. O'Donnell presented the diplomas to the graduates and spoke briefly on the significance of their graduation. He also felicitated them for the success achieved during the past school year and in closing extended his best wishes.

The graduates were as follows:

Gertrude Orena Brown, Agnes Betty Maria Burman, Lucy Alice Conner, Edna May Day, Gladys Minerva Dexter, Mildred Vera Falown, Helen Theresa Finnegan, Dorothy Avis Fish, Anna Theresa Flanagan, Cecelia Josephine Foley, Christina Krikorian, Mary Rita

Science, invention, discovery, have done much for mankind in the last century. More wealth, improved living conditions, and higher civilization have resulted. With all the great strides made, health and longer life—the greatest needs of all—seem to have been slighted. Improvements in this direction have not kept pace with the added strenuousness of the age. Science has contributed one discovery which has endured the test of time during the generation—

AT SCHOOL GRADUATIONS

Congressman Rogers Spoke at Varnum on Citizenship—Four Other School Graduations

Five grammar schools, the Greenhage, Washington, Green, Varnum and Pawtucket, held exercises of graduation and sent out large classes last evening. The exercises were well attended by relatives and friends of the graduates and former graduates of the schools.

The address at the Varnum school was given by Congressman John Jacob Rogers. The singing was directed by Frederick O. Blunt. The class gift to the school was a cast of Giuliano de Medici. The class motto was "In Quest of the Best" and the class colors blue and gold. The class officers were: Armand Francis Denault, president; Anna Katherine Newcomb, vice president; Verda Leach, secretary; Victor Brock Darling, treasurer.

Congressman Rogers' Address

"Citizenship" was the subject of Hon. John Jacob Rogers' address. He said in part: "The history of a nation, as that nation is today, after all begins with the Civil war and with the ending of the Civil war. Up to that time, for 75 years, we had been struggling almost throughout with two of the greatest problems that could possibly engage any nation's attention. One, of course, was the problem whether the states which constituted that nation should be permitted to withdraw at will. The other was the slavery question. Those were settled when Lee surrendered, then came the real new birth of the nation; and during the succeeding years that nation began to grow along right lines. We grew rich and prosperous and mighty, but rich and prosperous and mighty within ourselves. Washington had told us, wisely, to avoid tangle alliances, and we took pride in the fact that we were a nation sufficient unto itself. The first break which wrecked the attention of the nation as a whole from that point of view came when the Monroe doctrine almost brought us to war with England over the Venezuelan controversy, and President Cleveland and Sec. Olney guided the ship of state so wisely that the breakers were passed and we again found ourselves sailing in smooth waters. But then came the question whether Spain should longer be permitted to work its cruel will in the island just at the south, and the nation, roused by one of our best statesmen, rose to arms just as we were passing by a series of foul acts of cowardice.

"At the end of that war the United States had for all time ceased to be a power within itself. The United States became a world power, and it can never be anything else. In one sense we did not realize what our obligation and duty were as a result of this change of our position in the world's history. We made no further provision for the protection of the nation, and it was not until the very outbreak of the war in Europe that we realized that something must happen, that we must do something if we were in the future to enjoy the peace, prosperity and happiness of the past. Today, the people are facing the question whether the United States will continue to live on in a false paradise. "France saw that she was in danger, and she adopted a system which would enable her to defend herself as a nation. England, her neighbor and ally, had in a measure seen the danger also and had provided against it insofar as she might by the creation of a mighty navy. The United States has had precisely the same insularity, in its essence, as has England.

"France required her young men to serve in the army, to be ready when the hour struck, to do their part in defending the nation against invasion. England saw the danger but she did not realize that it was just as important for her that the balance of power should be kept intact in Europe as that her own island should not be invaded by a foe. In the last analysis, if the balance of power of Europe were overturned, if one great nation got control, it meant that that nation would control England in the future, and her navy could not prevent it. So it was found to be necessary for England to be in a position to throw her armies into Europe. But England did not take counsel of other nations in the matter. She simply had a navy and nothing else. You know what happened in August, 1914. It was the day which the little country of Belgium could furnish, which enabled France to concentrate her armies on the battle line. England, anxious to help, played no part in that onslaught, and oftentimes, as we know full well, the onset of a long war is determined of the results of that war.

"Think of a battle line 500 miles long and more! I wonder if you know how many miles of that 500 Great Britain defended for the first six months of the war? Thirty miles; and she did the best she could. Great Britain was not prepared, that is, she was not ready for the striking of the hour, and France was ready. France had believed in universal service and England had not.

"We have not believed in universal service. The question that these young women and these young men will have to decide, with millions of others in the country during the next ten years, is whether we shall follow the example of France or the example of Great Britain. I am not sure that the moment has arrived when we can meet that question fairly and squarely and be sure that we are deciding it rightly. I am not here to make a plea for universal military service, but I am here to suggest that that problem seems to me to transcend any other problem which the nation will have to meet during its immediate future.

"There are many things about universal service that are not as bad as I think we are apt to paint them at first thought. President Wilson said the other day that he was a believer in universal voluntary service. Former President Roosevelt scornfully attacked that position. It does sound like a contradiction, yet I suspect that what President Wilson had in mind was that if service were made universal by law it might come hard at first, but pretty soon it would become a part of our national life and so much a matter of course that everyone would accept it as natural and proper.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

Many a proud parent who today is preparing his or her boy or girl for graduation from the grammar school was among the graduates of quarter of a century ago and experienced the same delight in those days as the children of today feel as the day upon which they are to receive their diploma approaches. PUT DOWN ROWDYISM

The frequent outbreaks of rowdyism at summer camps in this section and the still more numerous complaints make one wonder if our vacation resorts are sufficiently policed or if something should not be done for the more stringent enforcement of order. Some of these places have become a Mecca for the loafers and undesirable of city slums. They come from Boston and other larger cities to quiet and beautiful surroundings where so many decent people try to enjoy respite from work, and they not only make life unbearable for others but eventually give the place of their resort a bad name. Things have surely come to a pretty pass when groups of young people feel that they must explain when they say they are camping at certain places not a hundred miles from Lowell.

Clergymen have found it necessary to preach from local pulpits on the dangers of camp influences on young people, but nevertheless the undesirable element at those places is not so large as one might suppose. A more rigid enforcement of the law all around, and co-operation with the local police department might in a short time banish the few who do so much damage during the summer months.

Judge Enright declared on Saturday that he will deal severely with rowdy campers who are brought before him, and all who enjoy camp life will heartily commend his decision. The comparatively few town officers who deal with the enforcement of law in such places will do well to keep a watchful eye on their respective territory and in some cases they ought to apply for aid if only for a few months in order that camp rowdyism may be made a thing of the past in the places adjacent to this city. There is a sort of sympathetic communication between the gangs that infest some of those places, and when one is dealt with severely the news does not take long in traveling elsewhere.

Five years ago, camp life in the neighborhood of Lowell was all that one might desire, and it is in the power of the authorities to restore the conditions that then existed. The first essential is the banishment of the comparatively few undesirable whose idea of a good time is to break the law and make life unpleasant for everybody else.

THE PROGRESSIVE BALK

Evidences are not lacking to prove that the more sincere element among the progressives does not relish the position in which they have been put by the desertion of Col. Roosevelt, and the percentage of the erstwhile progressive vote that will switch to President Wilson in consequence may be surprising. The county chairman of the progressive party in New York has openly declared that the progressives were not going to be "delivered to the republicans in the support of either their national or state ticket." The Massachusetts progressive state committee is on record as against the nomination or endorsement of Mr. Hughes. Like news comes from Illinois and Michigan, and everywhere influential men of the party have come out in condemnation of their treatment by the leader they trusted not wisely but too well.

If there is any one thing that the progressive party has stood for, it was opposition to machine methods in party politics. Claiming an ideal independence of thought they allowed their destinies to be moulded by a leader who used them for his personal ends, and when he could not use them further handed them over—or thought he did—to the man he had opposed and harshly criticized. They naturally resent being made party to a continued policy of wrecking, and just because they failed to wreck the republican party is no reason they should strive to wreck the fortunes of President Wilson whose honorable personal and official career calls for better treatment. Theodore Roosevelt is very likely to learn that the resentment of his former followers may make more votes for President Wilson than his eleventh hour espousal of the republican platform will make for Mr. Hughes.

No one has yet accused Mr. Bryan of being lacking in political sagacity or insight, and it may be recalled that Mr. Bryan dwelt on the opportunity of the democrats to win the disgruntled progressives after the Chicago fiasco. At this writing the predictions of the democratic leader stand a good chance of coming true, but it is the silent vote that will count eventually and the speeches made for political effect or the letters written with a like purpose.

MAKE FOURTH SAFE

For a number of years the popular tendency has been towards the celebration of Independence day in a safe and sane way. Noise has still been made in sufficiently impressive quantity and the usual patriotic outbursts have not decreased in intensity, but when the holiday is past there have been few maimed patriots in the hospitals and the number of deaths from accident has been negligible as compared with previous years.

There is an obvious danger that, taking thoughtless advantage of the Mexican situation and the preparedness movement throughout the country, the public may step backward this year. Those who think American patriotism synonymous with noise and bluster may once again look for the revolver, the noisy fire cracker and the other dangerous features that made the day hideous before the advent of a better spirit. All communities should forestall this possibility and so far as possible ensure a patriotic celebration that shall make up in genuine American feeling what it shall lack in childish folly.

On the other hand, the more the day shall savor of serious patriotic observance the better. Not America alone but the world from pole to pole has been stirred and disturbed by the great war that has made the old world a human shambles. Great and far reaching questions confront this nation, not only in Mexico but in our adjustment with world affairs after the dawn of peace. The demands of nationhood on our people are not to be met in the spirit of superficial effervescence but in a sober thoughtfulness of our national heritage and our place in the world of the future. Independence day is the nearest day we have to a national holiday, and it ought to be made the medium of bringing home to the American people thoughts that go deeper than the appeal of the midway, the fireworks celebration or the many things that have become associated with the popular observance of the day.

ON THEIR WAY

The wishes of the entire people of Massachusetts go with the members of the Ninth regiment who are on their way to the southern border to be on hand for whatever duty their country may demand of them. Whether or not they shall see active fighting in Mexico it is for the future to decide, but the people of this commonwealth know confidently that they will give a good account of themselves and do credit to their native state. Their reputation for patriotism and honor is already assured and even though peace should prevail and they should return without penetrating into Mexico, they shall always be sure of the respect of the citizens of Massachusetts. Life will go on here in the same old way with its myriad distractions and demands. Industry will still absorb the energies of the people and the amusement places will have their summer crowds, but home groups will be ever mindful of the boys who have gone to Mexico and prayers will be offered up that they may return safely with their country's honor vindicated. Massachusetts has always been first when the call has come from Uncle Sam, and it is with pride we realize that our own Ninth has been the first to lead the way to the border.

PARK OBSERVATORY

The suggestion of the park department that an observatory and ornamental observation tower be erected on Fort Hill opens up great possibilities. It would undoubtedly prove a great acquisition to our park system and might be availed of for education purposes of a high order. The Sun has long believed in the plan and has several times suggested it. The chief objection at the present time is the very same that may be made to many another worthy scheme, viz: Can we afford it? Rarely has Lowell been confronted with more expensive improvements that simply will have to be attended to. Enumeration is unnecessary—they are well known through the long agitation concerning most of them. We need so many necessary things and we need them so badly that we had better let the observatory go until a more propitious season. If perchance some generous donor should feel his heart strings and his purse strings expand at the thought of the panorama of the heavens as seen from the summit of our beautiful park, there would be general rejoicing, but until some wealthy Lowell citizen takes this fine way of perpetuating his name it is questionable if the city can do much about it.

RAILROADS WOULD ARBITRATE

Faced by demands from conductors, engineers, firemen and brakemen the railroads of the country propose a federal inquiry and arbitration, thus making the question really a public one and striving to arrange it in full view of the country. It is a wise decision and it marks a radical departure from the time when both railroads and employees were more or less hostile to every suggestion of arbitration. If the interstate commerce commission or some other disinterested and responsible body should now take the railroad situation as a whole and strive to arrange matters in a spirit of fairness and justice and with the interests of the American public in mind, a precedent might be established that would ultimately mean much to the railroads, the employees and the American people who are most vitally concerned.

Where is my soldier boy tonight?

Major Charles A. Stevens of Lowell answered questions in regard to mustering in and other matters of a like nature propounded by the corp of newspaper men on the field. Having had experience in the past with members of the Fourth Estate he was perfectly competent for the task.

Teddy and Margaret

At the head of the company, Ninth regiment at Camp Whitney, was a case containing a bantam rooster, known as "Teddy Roosevelt," and a bantam hen, known as "Margaret Foley." There were also three kittens, the black and white one having been named "Carrie Nation," the two gray and white kittens being named "Henry Ford" and "Billy Sunday." It may not be necessary to say that the happy family was the centre of much attention.

Something Doing Then

Little Willie came to his mother with the following query: "Mother, what would you do if someone broke the large vase in the parlor?"

"I would whip him," responded mother. After a few seconds elapsed, Willie, with a broad grin, said: "Well, you better get ready. Papa broke it."

Waiting

"It ain't that, sir," explained the barber. "You see, sometimes I make a mistake and snip off a little bit of a customer's ear."—Boston Transcript.

Pays All Losses

"We are spending more money than we can stand," said hubby. "Can you do something to reduce the household expenses?"

"I'm doing the best I can, love," replied his wife. "I haven't paid the butcher or the grocer in months, but I simply cannot get credit for meat and tickets, and my losses at bridge have to be paid in cash, too."

Obliging an Old Master

On the occasion of the death of a chief of one of the department bureaus in Washington, a clerk in that bureau was dashing madly down the street when he was stopped by a friend, who asked:

"Why the deuce are you in such a tearing hurry?"

"I am going," explained the clerk, "to the funeral of my chief, and there is nothing he hates like unpunctuality."

Making It All Right

Katherine and Margaret found themselves seated next to each other at a dinner party and immediately became confidential.

"Why did you tell her that secret I told you not to tell her," whispered Margaret.

"Oh, isn't she a mean thing!" gasped Katherine. "Why, I told her not to tell you!"

On Judge Lindsey

"They used to tell a pretty good story on Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, who has decided ideas on social reforms," said Henry C. B. Timberlake of the second Colorado district. "It seems that he was taking lunch one hot day with a politician."

"Judge Lindsey said, 'I see you're drinking coffee. That's a drink that heats you up considerably.'"

"Yes," said Judge Lindsey. "Sure, in this heat, whether you ought to drink beer drinks, Judge—sharp, iced drinks. Did you ever try iced gin and ginger ale?"

"No," said the politician, smiling, "but I've tried several fellows who have."

How Delta Managed

A great deal of noise arose in the nursery one morning, and since it gave no promise of subsiding, Mrs. Odell hurried in that direction. She found the baby howling with might and main, and the new nursemaid sitting calmly by.

"Well, dear, this is a terrible noise," cried Mrs. Odell, angrily. "What is the matter? Can't you keep the baby quiet?"

"Certainly, mam," replied the girl, "but I can't keep him quiet unless I let him make a noise, mam."

Whirlwind, the Drummer

They were talking about a promising young man who had failed to make good as a travelling salesman. The first man said to the other man: "It was queer about that boy. He seemed to be a regular whirlwind. His first trip was a rattling success, but all he brought back from his second trip was a bunch of fresh excuses."

"What was it you called him—a whirlwind?"

"I see. All 'whirl' at the beginning."

Cocoon Oil Makes

A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulberry cocoon oil, which is pure and entirely greaseless, is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulberry cocoon oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Some Historic Points

The English are declared to take their pleasures seriously. Perhaps they do, but on the other hand, they often show an admirably gallant gaiety in the face of danger, difficulty and discouraging circumstances.

Throughout centuries of English history, jokes, from sources military, literary, noble and even royal, have occasionally enlightened momentous events. The sober historian who writes fully of the disastrous Battle of Culloden, which decided the final fall of the royal house of Stuart, when the duke of Cumberland, General Cope, Wade and Hawley was delayed by the snowdrifts and icy slopes of wild Scotland, condescends to record in a footnote that the opposing forces drew mirthful encouragement from this punning couplet:

Cope could not cope, nor Wade wade through the snow,
Nor Hawley haul his cannon to the foe.

When in 1797, the fleet of Admiral Duncan was about to engage that of the Dutch Admiral De Winter, the British captains came aboard the flagship for instructions. They received them in an address of memorable brevity and point.

Their enthusiastic compliance with his advice resulted in a brilliant victory.

Perhaps the briefest and witliest of historic English puns was the Latin announcement in a single word of the conquest of Selma, attributed to the conqueror, Sir Charles Napier:

"Peccavi" (I have sinned).—Youth's Companion.

The American Flag

"Your flag and my flag, and how it flies, and my land and half a world away."

Rose red and blood red its stripes for snow white and soul white, the good forefathers' dream;

Sky blue and true blue with stars that gleam;
The glories of the day, a shelter through the night.

Your flag and my flag, and, oh, how much it holds!
Your land and my land, secure within its folds.

Your flag and my flag, and my heart beat quicker at the sight,
Sun-kissed and wind-tossed, the red and blue and white;

The flag—the great flag—the flag for me and you,
Glorifies all else beside, the red and white and blue.

LIEUT. SHACKLETON FAILED TO REACH TWENTY-TWO LEFT ON ELEPHANT ISLAND

LONDON, June 27.—Lieut. Sir Ernest Shackleton has been unable to rescue the men, numbering 22 and comprising the main body of his Antarctic expedition, who were left on Elephant Island.

This information was received in a despatch from Shackleton from Port Stanley, Falkland Islands. The explorer has evidently returned on the steamer, which had been placed at his disposal by the Uruguayan government for the purpose of effecting the rescue of his men. According to his despatch the ice conditions had so increased in severity that he was unable to get nearer than 20 miles to the island.

He thinks that there is still hope for the men, however, as there is an excellent chance that they will be able to survive on short rations, supplemented by penguins, until another rescue party, provided with an ice breaker, can push through to them.

The steamer Instituto, provided by the Uruguayan government, left Montevideo on June 8, with Lieutenant Shackleton aboard to succor the men on Elephant Island.

DOG GAVE THE ALARM

FAITHFUL COLLIE AWAKENED HIS MASTER AND OTHERS WHEN HOUSE WAS BURNING

The old Frank L. Peabody place, located in the southeastern part of Pelham, was totally destroyed by fire at an early hour Sunday morning.

The farm is now owned and occupied by Melvin C. Peacock and he had as a visitor at the time of the fire, a brother, Ernest Peacock, and a cousin from this city. They had retired at a late hour and were awakened between the hours of 3 and 4 by the barking of a collie dog.

The faithful dog ran all around the outside of the house and finally succeeded in waking the occupants.

The fire had started in the ell that connects the house and barn and spread rapidly. Mr. Peacock, however, succeeded in saving his cattle, 10 in all, and three horses. The building were in splendid condition and Mr. Peacock, it was stated, carried an insurance of $900. The cause of the fire is unknown.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

MEETING OF THOSE INTERESTED AT HOME OF DR. HUNTRESS—PURPOSE OF ORGANIZATION

Members of the American Legion in Lowell and all who may be interested in the organization are invited to attend an informal meeting at the home of Dr. Leonard Huntress, 46 Fort Hill avenue, from 7 to 9:30 o'clock Wednesday evening of this week.

The invitation is extended by Leonard Huntress, Jr., member of the Legion, who is enjoying a brief vacation in this city.

The purpose of the American Legion is to enroll in the service of the country a great body of volunteers, who, while not desirous of serving at the front in case of war, or unable to serve for one reason or another, wish to be of service in any other capacity.

It is patterned after the German Freiwillige and the French Volontaires, and one of its activities is to collect statistics that would be of use to the government in time of war. It is based on the central policy of preparedness and in the organization are some of the greatest industrial leaders in the country, the heads of great corporations and the oldest army and navy men in the service.

Ex-President Roosevelt and staff are members of the honorary governing council. The possibilities of the Legion are vast, though but vaguely understood as yet in this country.

The members of Gen. Adelbert Ames camp, United Spanish War Veterans, met in regular session last night in the council chamber at city hall, Commander Alexander D. Mitchell presiding. A number of camp members are going to Charlestown on July 4, to take part in the parade and exercises in observance of the centennial day, which was postponed from June 4.

Five members of the camp have enlisted either in the United States army or navy since the last meeting. The meeting adjourned to the second Monday in July.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of Loyal Integrity lodge, I.O.O.F., M.U., was held last night at the C.C.A. hall, Noble Grand Lee MacKenzie presiding. One new member was elected by ballot and one proposition for membership was received.

P.G. William Hudson, P.G. John Thomas and Roland Beanson were appointed to take charge of the votes for election of officers. The following officers for the ensuing six months were elected: G.M., Lee MacKenzie; N.G., Harold Merrill; V.G., Frank Laprice; E.S., David Thomas; treasurer, George E. Chase; P.S., Thomas Chas. Brown; P.E.C.M., George Emley; Jr. inst. officer in his place. The installation will occur at the next meeting of the lodge, when refreshments will be served.

EXALTED RULER COMING

Arrangements for the reception to Grand Exalted Ruler James R. Nicholson of B. P. O. Elks, which is to be held in Prescott hall, Thursday night have been perfected and it is expected that it will be one of the biggest demonstrations of Elksdom ever held in this city.

The reception will begin at 6:30 and dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. The speakers of the evening will include Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Mayor James E. O'Donnell, Grand Exalted Ruler James R. Nicholson, Collector of Internal Revenue John F. Malley, C. F. J. McGinnis, who is a member of the grand forum, District Deputy Cornelius Conley, Past District Deputy Peter McCann and William Scott, exalted ruler of Lowell lodge.

William D. Regan will be the toastmaster. The following named constitute the committee on arrangements: John J. Leach, chairman; Abel R. Campbell, secretary; Exalted Ruler William Scott, William D. Regan, Fred H. Rourke, John J. Healey, Elias A. McQuade, Hon. George E. Putnam, James H. Walker, Patrick Kelly and Christopher J. Hagan.

LOSSES AT THE OPENING

SEVERE DECLINES IN ISSUES OF CORN PRODUCTS CO.—HEAVY SELLING IN READING

NEW YORK, June 26.—Several declines in the issues of the Corn Products Co., whose dissolution has been ordered by the federal court, featured today's initial trading. The common stock opened with a single block of 500 shares at 15 to 15 1/2 against last week's final quotation of 13 1/2 and its preferred fell 8 to 8 1/2, some extending its loss to 10 points. In other quarters of the list the tendency was generally towards irregularly changes for most part being limited to fractions. Tennessee Copper, Industrial Alcohol, recent weak features, made gains of 1 point. Selling of Reading and Mexican created general heaviness later. There was steady liquidation of 65 points, making that stock, next to Reading, the most active issue of the forenoon. Reading's weakness and decline of 3 points had no material effect on other issues. Most Mexicans were lower by 2 to 3 points, with almost a sure for metals, motors and shipping shares. Industrial Alcohol reversed its early course, failing to a new low point for the movement and other specialties included in the war group, yielded to slight pressure. There were few neutralizing features, although United States was firm. Bonds were lower. Further heavy selling was noted, which included its loss to over 20 points, which ultimately affected other activities, which yielded 1 to 2 points. War shares and equipments also manifested greater weakness, Bethlehem Steel losing 3 1/2 points.

There were other active issues, particularly munitions and petroleum registered lowest prices in the afternoon. The closing was weak.

YOUNG MAN ACCUSED OF MURDER OF MARIAN LAMBERT TESTIFIES TODAY

WAUKEGAN, Ill., June 27.—Will H. Orpet, charged with the murder of Marian Lambert, resumed the witness stand today.

Ralph F. Potter, of counsel for the defense, asked about the water and molasses which Orpet sent to Marian "to relieve her mind." One of these bottles he sent to her, the other he brought to her on Feb. 9, the day of her death.

"I bought the bottle of six-ounce size of Otto Peterson and filled it two-thirds full in my room," he said.

He testified yesterday that Marian when he met her in Helms wood refused to accept it, saying "that will not do me any good."

Every ear was strained as Attorney Potter asked "What were your relations with Celeste Youker?"

"There was a tacit understanding between us. I had known her six years."

"Did she return your affections?"

"Yes."

"You were engaged?"

"No, there was an understanding; no date was set for matrimony. I had never formally asked her to marry me."

"Did you tell Mr. Dady or anyone else that you saw Marian take poison?"

"No."

Interrogation for the state was by Attorney David R. Joslyn, who was assisting State Attorney Dady.

He asked about an automobile ride which Marian and Orpet took last September. It was on this trip that the relations between the young pair passed the bounds of morality, the witness admitted.

"You were desperately in love with her, weren't you?" asked Mr. Joslyn.

"Not then; that came later, judging from my letters."

"You can't remember, independently of the letters, how your love developed?"

"No, sir."

U. S. CARTRIDGE BOSSES

NIGHT INSPECTORS HOLD A BANQUET AT PAGE'S JOLLY TIME ENJOYED

The night inspectors of the U. S. Cartridge Co., about 60 in number, gathered around the festive board at the D. L. Page Co. banquet hall last evening and enjoyed their first annual banquet.

The affair proved very entertaining and the organizers of the event were highly complimented for the success obtained.

The hall had been handsomely decorated for the occasion and the place resembled a veritable flower garden.

There was an orchestra in attendance and during the evening excellent music was furnished. The evening's program consisted of vocal and instrumental selections as well as appropriate addresses by prominent guests.

At 8 o'clock the guests discussed a very appetizing dinner, following which were speeches presided over by Frank S. O'Brien, who introduced as toastmaster, Frank H. Haines.

A brief address of welcome was delivered by the toastmaster and Mr. Weston, formerly with the Lew Dockstader Co., entertained with minstrel numbers.

Walter Brown, of the Honey Boy minstrels and Mr. Boyle were heard in songs.

William J. Robinson, assistant superintendent of the company, was the first speaker. He gave a very interesting talk on "Inspection." His remarks were well received inasmuch as they touched upon the work of those present.

John P. Kenney spoke very interestingly and briefly of the company. Other speakers were Mr. Carney, the night supervisor, who spoke of "Production," and Mr. Smith, who took for his subject, "Sorting Department."

A letter of regret for unavoidable absence was received from H. B. Cohn, business director. The evening's program closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the audience.

HER BODY CUT IN TWO

NATICK, June 27.—In view of many hundreds of persons passing to and from the mustering camp at Framingham in automobiles, Mrs. Mary E. S. Stevens, a widow, 60 years old, of South Bridgton, Me., who has one son, was run over and instantly killed by a car of the Boston & Worcester Street Railway company about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The car cut her body in two, rolling one part 60 or 70 feet along the track.

THE LADY'S WORKBAG

The day of the polished table and the housekeeper's pride is at hand. Also the day when the careful housekeeper is always in hot water, so to speak, for fear some defacing mark will appear upon her beloved table top. She fills her linen drawers, consequently, with piles of asbestos and other non-conducting materials to prevent the fatal scarring. She is wise also who provides dainty washable covering for these mats, so that they will not prove eyesores on an otherwise beautifully set table.

There are numerous ways of covering the mats, but perhaps the most useful and practical in every way are the mats of plain white linen, embroidered in white, which can be slipped off at a moment's notice and plunged into the general wash. The embroidery on these covers may be as elaborate or as simple as one chooses. A monogram or initial is very often their only ornament. Place a few "thousand flowers" or "lazy daisies" on your cover, and you will have something worth looking at as well as using.

The scalloping is done through two thicknesses of linen, cut to match the size of plate or platter for which they are designed. The embroidery of the front piece is done first, of course, as it could not be very well done after the two thicknesses of linen are scalloped together.

A cute pair of slippers to slip on baby's wee feet this coming summer could be made of pique or linen untrimmed and lined bound. Both parts of the white ones are bound with bias tape, stitched on. The upper is then gathered together at the back, and overbanded onto the sole. The holes are punched at each side of the front opening, and laced with baby-ribbon.

The practical little cap that opens into a straight piece for the laundry tub seems almost as if designed for the proverbially dirty boy. At any rate, its simplicity offers a few minutes saved at the ironing board, which is a big consideration on a hot day. It is fashioned of one white rep. The band is double and about three inches wide, while the crown is cut in one with the outer thicknesses of the band, and faced to admit of a confining rubber.

By an ingenious placing of snap fasteners, the crown is snapped into place on the band, which is fastened on one side by the same method. The crown size is regulated by the rubber band, so that it may stretch with the lengthening of the band, thus requiring only the adjustment of the one set of fasteners on the band itself to make the cap an inch or more larger. The embroidery is of the simplest, being but two narrow bands outlined in white and filled in with diagonal stitches of coarse blue floss.

Dainty bedroom accessories in the way of curtains, bedspreads, bureau and dresser scarfs, can be easily made at small cost of striped or checked gingham. Blue and white is a clean, cool color to select.

For the bedspread use coarse white lace insertion about an inch wide, half down to join the breadth, and a half down the center and also to place at the heading of a ruffle eight inches wide that is placed on each side and across the bottom of the spread. Shams for pillows are edged with narrow lace insertion and a four-inch ruffle. For the bureau scarf use three 12-inch squares of gingham, joined and edged with insertion.

The window curtains are made perfectly plain, excepting for a small lace insertion about an inch wide across the end headed with insertion. A deep valance across the top is edged with a narrow ruffle also. With a blue and white cotton rug on the floor this makes a most attractive room for a young girl. Gingham is very inexpensive and launders beautifully.

Have you a little girl who you want to train in the domestic way she should go? And do the little fingers work daintily even long seams and uninteresting centerpieces? Why not suggest some interesting embroidery for hot afternoons when it is much better for little ones to be quietly employed than running about in the scorching sunshine. There are so many cute little articles that a child may embroider which she can use afterward herself and which will make her doubly proud of her handiwork. There is the little play apron in colored linen or chambray. Mother can run it up in no time on the machine, binding the edge with white cloth and pressed ready to use into place over the raw edges. She may make one deep pocket across the front and print or write on it the words "Play Time" or draw if she can a group of scattered toys.

Play aprons turned up halfway and stitched into a series of deep pockets are most useful and admit of as much anchoring or writing on it the words "Play Time" or draw if she can a group of scattered toys.

One of the most difficult things for the home dressmaker to accomplish is the proper cutting of striped materials. To be able to cut a striped dress is a proof that you are by no means a novice at the art of dressmaking. Skirts are always cut first. Lay the material out flat on the cutting table, and if there is no "up-and-down" to the material, you will be able to cut the gores into each other, cutting the material in an economical way. Remember to have the line of small perforations found in the center of each pattern run straight with a stripe. This will cause each cut edge to be slightly bias, and when joined will look far better than if a bias edge was joined to the straight.

The center of the front zone must, of course, be on a stripe. Double your material before cutting in order to have both sides exactly alike. When cutting sleeves, be sure the material is doubled, and save yourself the trouble of having one sleeve different from the other, thus ruining the garment. Stripes should be run straight from the shoulder to the waist in straight lines. Have the stripes run straight down the center of the front and straight down the center of the back when cutting the bodice. Always allow plenty of material for seams when striped material is used, and be sure that the stripes match in the joining of seams.

When traveling or when loaded with trunks or suit cases, as so many young women are, skirt hangers made at home take up no room. To use simply pin two of them into the skirt band and hang on a nail. A large safety pin and a brass ring is needed for each hanger. Mercerized thread of any color may be used. Begin by crocheting a row of single crochet over 35 stitches. Then crochet back and forth, wrapping thread once on hook and taking off two stitches on a row. Repeat until you have nine rows, then crochet on ring and around it and the hanger is finished.

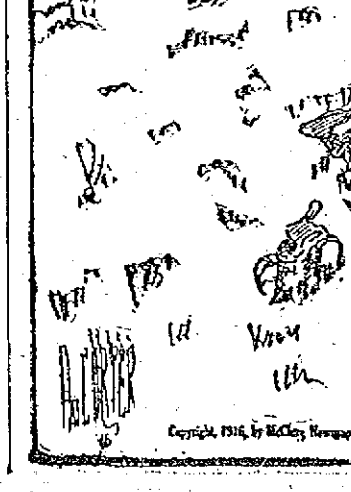

The new emeries, even if their sole object in life is still to keep the needle bright and shining, are quite gay and festive. The Dina emery can easily be copied by anyone who is a bit clever with paints. First, make a circular bag about 1 1/2 inches in diameter and fill with emery, then cover one side with a bit of light brown silk and the other with a bit of black and white, indicate the eyes and eyebrows with black, the lips red, and teeth white. A triangular piece of bright silk tied around the face looks like a bandana handkerchief and gives just the right amount of crocheting to this amusing little emery.

SAID GOOD-BYE FIVE INQUESTS

Mothers the Very Last to Leave Camp—See Boys March Away

BOSTON, June 27.—Scattered all over the great hot, sun-dried field at Framingham yesterday were large numbers of a certain sort of women. They spoke very little; their eyes were mild and good, but red with crying; mostly all dressed in black, mostly very humble in appearance; their eyes constantly seemed fixed upon some certain point, as though they were watching something.

These women were the mothers of the army. They were the very last to go home. From the thousands who waited in one hand yesterday and saw the troops marching off, to the huzzas and cheers of the crowds that lined the streets to the entrainment, failed to notice these women.

There was one at the station. She was small, with white hair, dressed simply, in a black skirt and a little handkerchief. The crowds jostled her and pushed, but she did not seem to mind, and moved very nobly out of the people's way. She waited long for a car to take her to the field, but none came that had room for her. So she started to walk, quite alone.

She walked the whole way, that hot, blazing road, with automobiles whizzing by her. Every little while she'd wipe her forehead with her handkerchief.

The writer saw her again at the field. She was looking for the Ninth Regiment. Timidly she asked some body and was directed. Suddenly a young fellow came out of a knot of soldiers, and threw both arms about the little woman and kissed her. She said nothing about the journey—the hot road walked—only wiped her eyes and looked at her boy. He led her and bought her a soda at a fountain, and talked softly to her.

She was only one. On a bag of accoutrements sat a woman. She said she was Mrs. J. M. Winters of Somerville.

Inquiry Into Recent Fatalities Started at Police Court

Five inquests were held in the Market building this morning, four before Judge John J. Pickman and one before Judge Frederic A. Fisher.

The one held before Judge Fisher was that on the death of Daisy E. Higson, aged six years and eight months, who was struck and killed by an automobile operated by Charles H. Elwood of North Billerica on June 20.

An inquest was also held on the death of Edwin E. Rockwell of Manchester, N. H., who while trying to board a freight train in the rear of Livingston's coal yard dropped under the wheels and suffered injuries which resulted in his death a few hours later.

John O'Connor's body was found lying beside the railroad track in North Billerica on June 21, he having been struck by a passing train. Jeremiah Moynihan, aged 37, a fireman in the employ of the Boston & Maine railroad, was struck by a passenger train in the vicinity of School street crossing on June 2.

Allie Chodakowski, aged six years, was killed in Lakeview avenue, Braintree, on June 18. The boy with a companion was coasting down the street in a small wagon when they crossed in front of an electric car and before the motor-man could apply the brakes the car struck the wagon and instantly killed the boy.

Her son, Charlie, of B company, Fifth Infantry, was going. In a moment he came up.

"He supports me—and two little children," said the mother. "I'm too old to take care of them, and they haven't any mother. But he's going, and she stopped. The young man tried to cheer her up. He had seen service as a regular in the Ninety-sixth coast artillery. He had two children—Edie, and Charlie Jr. A. Well, he married away with his company, a half hour later.

Off to one side, near the Eighth's encampment, sat a young soldier and his mother. One glance at their faces cast in the same mould, told the story. She was a widow from Gloucester. She had a young son, Raymond Turner, of G company, Eighth Infantry, was his name. They talked a long time together.

After all sounded a bugle—he helped his mother to her feet—he kissed her, and went off. She stood still, never moved till the last man was gone. Then she walked slowly down the dusty road alone.

They all had names, but it seems unnecessary to give them. They were just mothers.

VILLA PLEDGED TO SUPPORT CARRANZA

Possibility of War With United States Said to Have Healed the Breach Between Two Factions in Mexican Politics — 10,000 Mexican Troops Concentrated at Bustillos

EL PASO, Tex., June 27.—Evidence that the possibility of war with the United States has healed the breach between the Carranza and Villa factions in Mexican politics continued to increase here today. More than 100 wealthy Mexicans who, prior to the surrender of the Villa garrison of Juarez last January had been active in supporting the bandit leader and who since have been refugees in El Paso, crossed the Rio Grande and apparently were received in good favor by authorities of the de facto government.

Hand bills printed in Spanish, asserting that Villa himself had been pledged to support the Carranza government in the event of a break with the United States were circulated in Juarez and to some extent in the Mexican quarter of El Paso. All reports indicated, however, that the bandit chieftain has not yet joined the constitutional forces, but with a body of his troops is somewhere in the Rio Florida district of southern Chihuahua, awaiting developments in the crisis.

Gen. Manuel Medina, formerly Villa's chief of staff and Gen. Jose Yndurain, minister of war in the Gutierrez cabinet were guests today of Gen. Francisco Gonzalez, commander in Juarez. It was reported here that they are to be assigned to important duties in Gen. Trevino's army of the north.

Private advices here today said that several hundred men of the force of 10,000 Mexican troops which have been concentrated at Bustillos, 70 miles west of Chihuahua City, for the ostensible purpose of blocking any attempted American advance down the Mexico Northwestern railway toward the capital, formerly were members of bandit bands, scattered and broken by Gen. Pershing's troops. Operating in conjunction with them it was said, are the commands of Calixto, Contreras and Canuto Reyes, former Villa leaders, who recently were granted amnesty by Gen. Trevino. Well informed Mexicans here said today they had been told that only a few of the Cientificos faction, the former wealthy land holders of the republic, are still under the ban of the de facto government.

Gen. Marcelino Garza, former Orozco leader and adherent of Huerta, is now occupying a command at the Mexican field base at Villa Ahumada.

With the American demands before Carranza, the heaviest guard yet maintained was bivouacked about the two international bridges last night. From the Mexican side came reports that virtually the entire former garrison was withdrawn to Villa Ahumada, 53 miles south. It is said a large command is entrenched there. Two troop trains to one of which is attached Gen. Gonzalez's private car and two cars of food stuffs are waiting in Juarez to carry the remnants of the garrison to the field base should hostilities develop. Preparations for the reception of the state troops and the two additional batteries of the Fifth Field Artillery under orders to take station in El Paso continued today. It was expected that the first of the new soldiers will arrive here some time tomorrow.

REPORT VILLA SHOT BY HIS OWN FOLLOWER

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, June 20, by Courier to Columbus, N. M., June 27.—Francisco Villa was shot from the rear by a Mexican he had impressed into his gang during the battle with Carranza troops at Guerrero, but his fate still is unknown.

This information was contained in a semi-official account obtained by Major Robert L. Howze, who was close to Villa's trail last April and given out here yesterday.

Major Howze learned the details of the wounding of the bandit chieftain from one of the Mexicans Villa drafted and who afterward deserted.

The details of the story agreed with facts Americans officers obtained in their pursuit of Villa and by their independent secret service work, but the account does not say whether the bandit died or recovered.

Villa, the Mexican deserter said, exhibited every evidence of terror during the early stages of his flight after the Americans had defeated his men at Guerrero. The informant said he believed Villa was dead, but if he is still alive, he is in the state of Durango, for which point he was heading during his flight from General Pershing's attack.

BITTER ATTACK ON U. S.

AT RIO JANEIRO, BRAZIL

RIO JANEIRO, June 27.—The keen interest with which Brazil is following the developments of the crisis between the United States and Mexico received a new impetus today following a spirited discussion in the chamber of deputies during which an opposition deputy made a bitter attack on the United States.

The discussion was opened by this deputy who, commenting on the last note sent to Mexico by Secretary Lansing, declared he was astonished that the United States should make difficulties in accepting the explanations of Mexico while promptly accepting those of Germany in regard to the submarine war. The speaker asserted that Germany was continuing its undersea campaign in violation of its promise to Washington and that the United States did not dare to protest. He concluded by expressing the hope that Brazil would continue to maintain its solidarity by denouncing the people at the sovereignty of all countries without regard to the economic or military strength of any nation.

Deputy Souza e Silva, speaking for the government, defended the international policy of the administration and declared that Brazil stood firmly for the solidarity and fraternity of the American nations.

Deputy Souza e Dantas, who has taken Dr. Lauro Muller's place as minister of foreign affairs during the latter's absence from the country, questioned in regard to the attitude of the government in the present crisis, said that the government had entered into no negotiation but, in common with all Americans, was watching the situation with the anxious hope that a peaceful solution would be found.

AUTO MEN READY TO FURNISH 1000 CARS A DAY

NEW YORK, June 27.—Automobile manufacturers of the United States are prepared to furnish to the government on short notice 900 motor trucks and 1000 passenger automobiles a day, says Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Reeves says this information was given to the war department at a recent meeting of the advisory board to the general staff of the United States army. The automobile manufacturers were told that this contingency would be sufficient to meet any emergency.

EMBARGO ALREADY HAS AFFECTED MEXICAN ARMY

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 27.—The embargo on exportation of supplies into Mexico from the United States already has affected the Mexican army, according to reports received here today. Funston headquarters here today became known that the reason the Mexican force recently left Nuevo Laredo was because they were unable to obtain forage for their horses from this side of the border.

The situation opposite Naco, Ariz., where 1500 Mexican troops are being held on trains, aroused widespread speculation here. General Funston has sent reinforcements to the American forces at Naco and entrenchments have been thrown up there.

UNITED STATES ACCUSED OF PERFDY BY MEXICANS

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—Foreign Minister Aguilar made public today messages sent to Latin American countries in which the government of the United States is accused of perfidy and with concentrating troops along the border with hostile purposes toward Mexico. The messages are in answer to communications from South American countries offering their services to mediate between the United States and Mexico.

The messages say that after the incident at Matamoros the United States began to gather its armed forces along the international line with the intention of aggression against Mexico. It is asserted that Mexico is not seeking war but that it is forced to fight it to the last extreme at the cost of the blood of its sons and the destruction of its wealth.

The messages conclude by stating that the "perfidy" of the American government not only affects Mexico but all Latin American countries in this continent. It is added that Eliseo Arredondo, the Mexican ambassador designate at Washington, has been instructed to get in touch with his Latin-American colleagues, who have offered to mediate and do everything in their power to prevent war. The final sentence of the messages reads:

"The people and government of Mexico are lovers of peace and will maintain peace at any cost on the understanding that the dignity and sovereignty of the republic is not attacked."

NATIVE CONSTABULARY POLICES

THE NAMQUIPA DISTRICT

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, Mex., June 27, via Army Motor Truck to Columbus, N. M., June 27.—An efficient mounted native constabulary today polices the Namiquipa district. The corps were organized by officers of the United States punitive expedition that the Mexicans might protect themselves and their homes from the lawlessness which has followed in the wake of civil war in the country.

Along the canyons and foothills of the surrounding country the members of the force have already paid the Americans for their administrative effort by uncovering numerous caches of rifles, machine guns and ammunition.

Citizens in the vicinity assert that since the organization of the corps there has been a marked decrease in crime.

GOVERNOR'S FAREWELL

MCCALL BIDS DEPARTING MAY STATE TROOPS GODSPEED AT CAMP WHITNEY

Governor McCall bade farewell to the Bay State troops at Camp Whitney as they were about to depart for the Mexican border yesterday. He said:

"A solemn occasion exists which in the opinion of the president of the United States requires you at once to leave your homes and go forth to serve your country. Your mobilization has been accomplished with all the speed possible under the circumstances. More time might well have been spent to perfect your condition but the call of the head of the nation is the supreme call and it finds you ready to respond."

"It is a series moment when you take yourselves from your firesides, your kindred and your friends to render service which may be full of hardship and of danger. But whatever may come to you I feel sure that you will acquit yourselves like men and show yourselves fit comrades with the brave men of the Massachusetts of other days. Not merely the commonwealth, but the whole country will stand behind you."

A shot fired at an American soldier, wherever he is right is in the performance of his duty, is a shot fired at the American home. While you will be ready to dare greatly, we may be sure that there will be no act of inhumanity to your part to tarnish the most brilliant victory or sully the honor of your flag."

"Your prompt response puts a duty upon every one in the commonwealth to care for those who are dependent upon you and upon those who will be quick to follow you if the call shall come. Remember that you are the soldiers of a great and civilized nation; that you are the citizens of a commonwealth with a proud history. Show yourselves worthy of both."

"On behalf of all the people of the commonwealth, I bid you farewell and Godspeed."

Municipal Council Deals With Pole Locations and Garage Petitions

In the absence of Mayor O'Donnell, who attended the exercises of graduation at the Vocational school, Commissioner William W. Duncan, the council president, presided at the regular meeting of the municipal council this forenoon. Only routine business was transacted. The council will hold a special meeting tomorrow to take action on coal contracts.

A hearing on the ordinance presented by the board of trade relative to the elimination of shingles and other combustible roof coverings was set for June 31 at 10 a. m.

The chairman read a communication from C. Kirkpatrick remonstrating against the location of a pole in front of his premises No. 20 June street. He objected to a pole in front of his premises, though the petitioner for the pole has none other than his own tenant who wants a telephone installed. The tenant, too, is a gentleman of the cloth, but Mr. Kirkpatrick says he would prefer a vacant tenement to a pole near 20 June street. Mr. Kirkpatrick is perfectly willing to have a post located on the rear line of his property and he says he does not wish to be arbitrary in the matter, but he feels it would lessen the value of his property at least $500 if the location is granted.

"While the tenant I now have, and would be more than pleased to keep, wants this pole," he said in his testimony, "I would much rather have him vacate than to allow the pole to be placed in front of my residence."

The petitioner was given leave to withdraw.

The petition of the Lowell Electric Light corporation for a pole location in Middlesex street, between Canton and State streets, was read and an order adopted.

The petition of the Lowell Electric Light company for permission to relocate a pole and attach ten wires thereto at the corner of Gorham and Summer streets, was read and order adopted.

The petition of the Lowell Electric Light corporation for permission to erect and maintain one pole on Wellington avenue, between Rogers street and Hoyt avenue, was read and a hearing ordered for July 11.

The petitions of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for permission to erect and maintain three poles on Beaver street, west from Lakeview avenue, one pole in Grosvenor street, near Middlesex street, four poles on Brookside avenue between Woodward avenue and Varnum avenue, and three poles on Camp street, west from Lakeview avenue, were read and hearings ordered July 11.

The petition of the Pitts Auto Supply Co. to keep store and sell gasoline at 7 and 3 Hurd street, was read and a hearing ordered for July 15. The same date was set for hearings on the petition of John Scholts for a garage and gasoline permit in Hale street, west from John A. Brien, garage, Livingston avenue and Westford street.

The petitions of Rev. Caleb E. Fisher and William D. Brown and others for ornamental arc street lamps in Hurd street were read and referred to Mr. Morse.

Hearings were ordered for today on the petition of Carrie Lindsay for a garage in Bagley avenue, and Daniel O'Dea, garage and gasoline, Middle street. There were no remonstrants and the petitions were referred.

It was voted that the city solicitor be authorized to sign for and in behalf of the city its assent to a decree accepting the auditor's tenth report on grade crossing disbursements, the amount to be paid being $35.70.

It was voted that the bond, which has just been presented by the National Engineering corporation to the city of Lowell, referring to the new Fawcett bridge, be accepted. The bond was by the National Surety Co. of New York, and was approved by the city solicitor. The amount was $25,000.

Examination for Teachers

The examination of teachers for third grade certificates was held at the high school Saturday. Thirty-five persons took the examination and although the condition as to Lowell residents had been removed during the past year by the school committee, every one of the 35 persons who took the examination was a graduate of the Lowell Normal school.

The questions for the examination were sent under seal by an outside school department and the package was broken at the beginning of the examination.

The packages of papers were sealed and sent by express to those who had made the examination. The result of this examination will be made known at some meeting of the school committee when the report of the examiners will be opened.

Freight Jumper Has Narrow Escape—Police Court Cases

Joseph Fitzgerald, aged 36 years, who has resided in Westford for the past year, but who claims Canton, Mass., as his home, is one of the luckiest men in this city at the present time. Although he occupied a seat in the dock in the police station it had not been long before he was released. He got a fairly good hold on the iron rungs on the side of the car, but was unable to draw his feet up and was dragging along the rails when Mr. Murphy rushed out from the flag shanty and seized him.

In court this morning Fitzgerald informed the court that he had been drinking steadily, but when he took several drinks they went to his head. Upon promising that he would do better in the future his case was placed on file.

Drunk Offenders

John A. Smith and John E. Kelly were each sentenced to two months in jail. Frederick J. Marshall and Albert M. Spalding were sentenced to the state farm but the sentence was suspended.

NOMINEE, URGED HIM TO STAY IN FIGHT.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Friends of John M. Parker of Louisiana, nominee of the progressive party for vice president, urged him today to remain on the ticket. Balmbridge Colby of New York, and other progressive leaders who are opposed to Charles D. Hughes for president, said that if Mr. Parker decided to stay in the race he should receive the votes of all loyal members of the party. Prohibition party leaders admitted today that if Mr. Parker remained on the progressive ticket he might be named for vice president by the prohibition national party which meets at St. Paul July 21.

WAR IF FIRST CHIEF FAILS TO RELEASE AMERICANS

If Cavalymen Captured at Carrizal are Not Released Within 48 Hours Action Will Be Taken by United States — Troops Being Rushed to Border to Back Up Gen. Funston's Regulars—President Wilson to Ask Congress for the Power to Act—
Delays Help United States Army

WASHINGTON, June 27.—There were clear indications today that if American cavalymen captured by Mexican troops at Carrizal were not released within 48 hours, action would be taken by the United States.

The impression prevailed in official circles that President Wilson would not wait beyond Thursday at the latest and possibly not beyond tomorrow afternoon for a definite reply from the Carranza government to the note demanding the immediate release of the prisoners and a declaration of intentions.

Delivered Note to Carranza
Special Agent Rodgers at Mexico City reported early today that he had delivered the note to the Mexican foreign office yesterday morning. He did not indicate how it had been received or when a reply might be expected.

Rush Mobilization
While the diplomatic aspects of the crisis awaited Carranza's action the war department drove forward its efforts to hasten mobilization of the National Guard on the border. It is certain that no aggressive military operation can be undertaken until a substantial number of state troops is available to back up Gen. Funston's regulars who unquestionably would lead any movement.

Wilson to Ask Power
President Wilson's first step, should he decide to force the issue, probably would be to lay the whole situation before congress in joint session. It is believed he so informed members of the joint relations committee of both houses in his conference with them on Sunday night.

Specific authority under which the National Guard could be employed beyond the border and also authorization for calling out volunteers would be needed.

Forced Into Military Action
It is regarded as certain also that any resolution presented for action would include a reaffirmation of the position of the administration that it is being forced into military action for the defense of its own territory from outlaws and has no purpose of territorial aggrandizement.

Expect Carranza to Give In Mexican officials here have expressed the opinion that Carranza would surrender the American prisoners, whatever reply he might make to the demand for a diplomatic expression of his purposes.
The state department has had no official report tending to confirm this view.

Delay Helps U. S. Army
Every day's delay in what seems the inevitable break in relations with the Mexican government sees the army in better position for the swift action that may follow.

Troops Entraining for Border
Advices from Gen. Funston's headquarters indicate that trains loaded with state troops are sweeping southward today from many parts of the country. Additional regiments are entraining or receiving the last necessary equipment.

Supplies for Soldiers
At the war department and in congress, hurried measures are being taken to provide supplies promptly for the army ordered to the border.
Consular advices during the day from the few state department representatives in Mexico reported quiet in the vicinity of their posts.
The Mexican embassy has not even been notified by Carranza of the receipt of the American note. Mr. Arredondo said he had not heard from his government since he communicated the inquiry of six South and Central American republics in regard to offers of mediation.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Fifteen hundred Sioux Indians in South Dakota have offered to enlist in the military service of the United States in the Mexican emergency.

NO SIGNS OF HOSTILITY

ON PART OF CARRANZA ARMY

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 27.—
Gen. Funston and his staff searched every report from all border stations today for signs of hostility on the part of Carranza's army, that is pouring into northern Mexico, but the real work at department headquarters was the supervision of the multitudinous details incident to preparing the American force for efficient action.

Over night and early morning reports from El Paso, Eagle Pass, Brownsville and other headquarters posts indicated no aggression by Mexicans.

The units of the National Guard now moving throughout the United States are expected to begin arriving in Texas tonight. Where they will be stationed will not be made public.
Some impatience was displayed at Gen. Funston's headquarters today that so much publicity already had been given to the movements of troops and it was indicated that a far-reaching censorship soon would be instituted.

The activity of Mexican troops at Naco last night was explained today.
Information had reached headquarters here that the Mexicans had planned to cross the line at Bisbee and raid the office and storehouse of the copper smelting concern.
The Twenty-second Infantry was rushed from Douglas to Bisbee last night.

Gen. Pershing reported to Gen.
Funston that the two squadrons of the 11th cavalry that had been sent towards Carrizal in search of the distressed members of the two troops that were engaged there by Carranza forces, have fallen back on the main line.

An ambulance company and a field hospital unit, both of the regular army, from Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., reached here today.

DISCUSSED BY CABINET

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Discussion of the Mexican crisis occupied today's brief session of the cabinet. When there was over Secretary Lansing announced there was no change in the situation and that the administration awaited word from Gen. Carranza. Secretaries Parker and Daniels said no new army or navy orders had been given.

CAPT. MOREY NOT TO

LEAVE MEXICO NOW

AUSTIN, Tex., June 27.—In answer to a telegram sent to Capt. L. S. Morey yesterday inquiring as to his condition and where he could join him, Mrs.
Morey received the following:
"Somewhere in Mexico, via Columbus, N. M. Am not coming out of Mexico
now. Am very well."

Mrs. Morey is of the opinion that on account of the hot weather and rough roads, Capt. Morey will remain in a temporary hospital on the Pershing line until he has sufficiently recovered to make the trip out.

THOUSANDS OF TROOPS

ARE READY TO ENTRAIN

WASHINGTON, June 27.—While the United States awaited today the final word from Gen. Carranza that will determine whether there is to be peace or war, thousands of National Guardsmen all over the country were ready to entrain for the border to reinforce Gen. Funston's command for any operations developments may make necessary.

Secretary Lansing yesterday presented even formal proposal of mediation by telling Minister Calderon of Bolivia that the American government believes nothing in the situation is subject to arbitration. Gen. Carranza previously had accepted "in principle" the offer to mediate.
With a singleness of purpose administration officials were looking today for word from Mexico City indicating Carranza's future intentions toward the United States. This was expected in reply to the last American note demanding release of the prisoners held at Chihuahua.

Eliminate 'Red Tape'

Even greater efforts were made by the war department to eliminate "red tape" and expedite the despatch of National Guardsmen to relieve regular army patrols for a possible Mexican campaign. Orders issued will permit postponement of final physical examinations until troops reach their destinations. Railroad officials were called on to give troops and army supply trains right of way over much other traffic.

Hay Resolution

Progress of the Hay resolution authorizing draft of the National Guard into federal service was delayed while the house today was to consider amendments made yesterday by the senate. The upper house eliminated the $3,000,000 appropriation for families of guardsmen but authorized the excusing from service those whose families are dependent. The house may not concur and thus make further delay by forcing the resolution into conference committee.

MEXICAN BULLETINS

SAN DIEGO, Calif., June 27.—The destroyer Stewart is to sail from this port today for Mazatlan, and the naval collier Brutus with coal for the Pacific fleet for La Paz.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Four trains carrying the 1st Regiment left here this afternoon for the border.
Word was received from Beckman that a train bearing the Third Ambulance corps and the first hospital field corps also had departed.

AUSTIN, Tex., June 27.—Guards have been doubled at the state capitol buildings because of the Mexican situation, it was announced today. Orders were issued to search all suspicious Mexicans entering the buildings.

NOGALES, Ariz., June 27.—A heavily armed filibustering expedition organized to cross the line at Sasabe and bring back an automobile seized by the Mexican authorities, was broken up here last night by the military authorities. Eighteen men, all carrying revolvers or automatic pistols and most of them rifles or shotguns, were quietly leaving town in six automobiles when a squad of infantry barred the road.

MASSACHUSETTS TROOPS NEARING THE BORDER

Four Regiments of Infantry, a Hospital Company and an Ambulance Corps on Way to Front

FRAMINGHAM, June 27.—Massachusetts before noon today had started toward the troubled southern border four regiments of infantry, equipped for action, a hospital company and an ambulance corps. The van of this movement, the "Fighting Ninth" regiment, with Brig.-Gen. E. Leroy Sweetser accompanying, was 12 hours on its way to El Paso at that hour. The cavalry and field artillery organizations, delayed by details concerning their mounts and a corps of signal men were preparing to move before nightfall, concluding the state's first contribution of approximately 1500 troops.

The forward movement was accomplished only after several delays, affecting most of the organizations. Men of the Eighth regiment, the Fifth regiment, and the ambulance and hospital units, today a training school for recruits
service at the front later.

At Camp Whitney, which the infantry abandoned yesterday there sprang up today a training school for recruits
service at the front later.

35,000 NATIONAL GUARD

TROOPS ON WAY TO BORDER

NEW YORK, June 27.—Nearly 35,000
National Guard troops from 17 states in the department of the east are under orders to start today for the Mexican border or already are on the way.
Three Massachusetts regiments, and two batteries of field artillery from New Jersey started during the night.
Indications are that about 30,000 troops from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont will get away before tonight.

In addition, troops from Maine, New Hampshire, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia and Florida, totaling about 15,000 men, had received orders from Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood to leave today for the border.
Six thousand National Guard troops of New York, comprising the Seventh, Seventy-first, Fourteenth and Forty-seventh regiments of infantry and a battalion of engineers together with auxiliary signal corps, field hospital and ambulance commands, are ready to leave as soon as transportation is provided, which probably will to some time today.

All are ordered to Brownsville, Tex.
Connecticut had her 1500 troops ready to start at an early hour and Vermont was ready with 1200 men.

The Seventh Infantry regiment, 1300 strong, left its armory this forenoon for Jersey City, there to entrain for the Mexican border. This was the first of New York state militia units to get under way.

Maj. Gen. O'Ryan today ordered the re-organization of the Sixty-fifth Infantry regiment of Buffalo into a heavy field artillery regiment which will be the only one of its kind in the National militia.

Capt. Daniel W. Hand of the United States field artillery has been placed in command of the regiment as colonel Capt. Sherman Miles, son of the lieutenant general Nelson A. Miles, U.S.A., retired, will be lieutenant colonel.

MORE SENT HOME AS

RESULT OF EXAMINATION

ALGUSTA, Me., June 27.—The membership of some of the companies of the Second Infantry, state militia, at Camp Keyes has been materially reduced by the rigid medical examination conducted by the federal surgeons, who are particular as to eyesight, teeth and weight in proportion to height. Out of a total of 125 men, Company 1 of Augusta lost 40. Today's report showed 44 officers and 1355 men in camp.

No orders, calling for a movement of the troops, had been received up to 2
p. m. from Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the department of the east.
The officers were of the opinion that they would depart Thursday for the south.

CONNECTICUT TROOPS

MOVE TOWARD BORDER

NIANTIC, Conn., June 27.—The movement of Connecticut militia to the Mexican border began today with the dispatching of a troop of cavalry and a signal company. Delays of various kinds retarded the entraining of other commands.

Following the departure of the cavalry and signal company, a car of the field hospital and ambulance company section was detached. Blocking traffic. The mishap delayed for a time trains bearing the Massachusetts troops.

14TH REGIMENT OF

14th Regiment of Brooklyn, nearly 1000 officers and men, entrained at Brownsville, Tex.

TWO REGIMENTS OF N. Y.

INFANTRY DEPARTED TODAY

NEW YORK, June 27.—Two regiments of infantrymen of the New York state National Guard departed today for the Mexican border, and other militia units were on trains expected to move at any hour.
The Seventh of New York city, 1300 strong left Jersey City this afternoon.
Several hours earlier, 1000 officers and men of the Fourteenth of Brooklyn, got under way from Peekskill, N. Y.
Both are destined for Brownsville.

VERMONT'S REGIMENT

OFF FOR EAGLE PASS

ESSEX JUNCTION, Vt., June 27.—The first regiment of Vermont's federalized militia entrained here today for the border with Eagle Pass, Tex.; understood to be their objective point. The departure from the state concentration camp near Fort Ethan Allen was made in a pouring rain.

NEW JERSEY TROOPS

ARE OFF FOR EL PASO

SEA GIRT, N. J., June 27.—The first
New Jersey regiment left here this afternoon for El Paso.

RHODE ISLAND TROOPS

PREPARE FOR SERVICE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 27.—Rhode Island National Guard men will go either to El Paso or San Antonio, according to transportation information received at Quonset camp today. Troop commanders, however, are ready to bring the total under canvas nearly 900 men. There are four cavalry troops, a battery and an ambulance company awaiting the call for border duty.
Three troops who would not take the federal oath were drummed out of camp this morning. The work of buying horses was rushed today under special orders from Gen. Wood.

REGIMENT LEAVES THURSDAY

CONCORD, N. H., June 27.—It was stated at Camp Spaulding today that the first New Hampshire regiment would not leave for the Mexican border until Thursday at the earliest. "Rigid medical examination for the federal service will reduce the strength of the regiment about 20 per cent, but recruits now being trained will to a very large extent take the places of the men dropped."

MAJ. GEN. WOOD EXPLAINS

DELAY IN MOBILIZATION

NEW YORK, June 27.—Maj. Gen.
Leonard Wood, commander of the department of the east issued a statement today in which he declared that the present system or rather lack of system of equipping the state militia for active duty was the main reason for delay in the mobilization and sending of troops to the border.
The militia is not permitted under existing laws, he said, today, to keep extra field equipment in their armories and as a result when the call to arms came as in the present instance, rifles, canteens, clothing, etc., must be obtained from the nearest arsenal.

Special to The Sun

STATE HOUSE, June 27.—Many Massachusetts employers are likely to get out from under the workmen's compensation law and take their chances under the common law in case of injury to their employees, unless the rates charged for workmen's compensation insurance are made lower. This was the opinion expressed yesterday by Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the industrial accident board, before the recess committee of the legislature which today began a study of the whole question of rate-making under the compensation act.

"In the period from July 1, 1912, to Sept. 30, 1914," Chairman Donahue said, "the insurance companies collected in premiums in this state a total of $8,886,000; they paid back in benefits on account of injuries $3,496,000. In my opinion the difference is unwarranted."

"On May first new rates went into effect in this state; now let us see just how these new rates are going to affect the textile industry, for example, with its 165,000 employees. Under the old schedule, employers in this industry paid $273,000 a year for their insurance; under the new schedule they will have to pay $567,000."

"Council for the Cotton Manufacturers' association told me only a few days ago that the rate under the old employers' liability law was 17 cents on each $100 of payroll; manufacturers in New Bedford and Fall River have figured that they can get out from under the compensation act and obtain their insurance under the common law at a rate of 40 to 45 cents, instead of the 65 they now have to pay under the compensation act."

"If the rates are to be so high that employers are likely to go out from under the act it is a matter of great importance, unfortunately our act in this respect is not compulsory as it should be, and as I hope the constitutional convention will make it."

"Previous to May first the textile manufacturers were paying a 35-cent rate, and 26 cents was being returned to the injured employee. That rate manifestly was not high enough, but there is no doubt whether the 65 cents is not too high. In boots and shoes there is a 25-cent rate, and of that only 12 cents goes back to injured workmen."

"I am convinced that a great deal can be done in the way of accident prevention, and it certainly ought to be done, because during the past three years there have been at all times five thousand persons out of employment because of injuries; that means a great economic loss. We have been under a handicap in accident prevention work, because the employer who installed every known safety device was requested to pay just the same rate as the man in the same industry who did nothing at all for the safety of his employees. Now we have a merit rating system, and I believe it will accomplish much, but after all personal care is the great preventive."

WHAT TO DO FOR NERVOUS INDIGESTION

When nerves go wrong they always go to strike at your weakest spot. When this spot happens to be the stomach, nervous dyspepsia results, appetite vanishes and the way to all that dread uneasiness and a hollow, gnawing feeling that keeps up until every nerve in your body seems on edge. The food you force down won't digest properly, and you're all in down and out for one day at least so far as being really useful to yourself or anyone else is concerned.

It's the height of folly to force the digestion of food with some painful pill when the stomach nerves are in such shape. Nervous indigestion comes from the nerves alone. Get the nerves right and all distress will vanish. Thanks to a remarkable chemical discovery, it is now possible to feed the nerve cells with the exact stimulus they require when overworked and unstrung and a preparation called Margo Nerve Tablets is producing remarkable results in the treatment of Nervous Dyspepsia, and other nerve disorders. They make a remarkable change in many instances in 10 minutes by the watch, strengthening the stomach and charging the nerve cells with strength, poise, power, and tremendous reserve energy and giving nerves of steel, a clear head and brain, courage, power, quick wit and real vital vim. Margo Nerve Tablets cannot harm anyone. They contain no dope or dangerous habit-forming drugs. Forty tablets come in a large package, and this is often enough to give lasting relief in the most obstinate cases. Lowell Pharmacy and other leading druggists everywhere are selling them with a positive guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

of accidents, and of far more value than safety devices. The personal care is not all on the side of the employee, either; last year we had 1000 accidents caused by falls on stairs, and it is safe to estimate that half of these would have been prevented if the employer had installed treads on his stairs.

"The question of physical examination of employees is another which must be given serious consideration. At the present time there are at least four great corporations in Massachusetts which are examining every employee, and hiring none but the physically fit, simply because the courts have ruled that a person who is injured while at work is entitled to compensation, even though his heart, for example, was in such condition that he would have died with an exertion, such as tying his shoes. Unless the legislature provides that such persons shall not come under the compensation act, employers are going to refuse to employ them, and we shall soon have a serious situation. They might be required to get a physical at common law, and they could obtain it if the employer was at fault, but to require industry to pay $4000 on account of a death for which it is not responsible is entirely foreign to every theory of the compensation law."

POSTOFFICE CHANGES

REORGANIZATION TO EFFECT THE CHANGE IN THE FINANCIAL ARRANGEMENTS

The reorganization plan in postoffices throughout the country which is going into effect on July 1 will make several changes in the local postoffice. As a result of careful inspection all of the first class offices are being reorganized on an efficiency basis.

Several months ago two federal inspectors, Messrs. Swift and Pendleton, paid a visit to this city, and as a result of their report the Lowell office will be reorganized on the plan embracing two divisions, one on finance and the other on mails.

According to the new plan the postmaster becomes supervisor of finance, the assistant postmaster, Edward A. Cheney, becomes postal cashier at the present salary of $1700; William M. Burns, special clerk, assumes the duties of bookkeeper, a new designation at the present salary, $1300; John J. Murphy becomes money order cashier at a salary of $1300, an increase of $100; Edwin H. Cook, superintendent of mails, will continue to look after this department at the same salary, $1500, and Joseph T. Meehan becomes foreman of mails at $1200, an increase of $100. The position of superintendent of delivery has been abolished in all offices.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

"Betty of Graystone," a real romance of New England and a Fine Arts film in five acts, with a very strong cast of actors in it, is the principal feature of the program of pictures at the B. F. Keith theatre, the first three days of the present week. Audiences yesterday liked the picture much, for Dorothy Gish, who is one of the big favorites of picturedom, appeared in the leading role, and the story of the play holds so many unusual features that interest is sustained throughout.

Second only to pretty Miss Gish is Owen Moore, who, in real life, is the husband of Mary Pickford. Among the others are George Fawcett, a prime Broadway star, and a very fine character actor, and Eugene Orsonide, an actor who has done splendid work on the legitimate stage. Kid McCoy, a former pugilist, also appears in a decidedly good bit of character work. The story of "Betty of Graystone" is of New England, or that rugged farming portion of it where many austere lives are lived. Betty had a lovable father and a decidedly cool, calculating and unlovable mother. The father died through lack of attention and hard work, and the mother in due season contracted a man who was the laziest in the whole section. Such a marriage did not augur well for Betty's future, for she had considerable of temperament, and the coming of a stepfather meant also the coming of two lumbrous step-brothers.

In the neighborhood was a mansion, Graystone, which had been closed for many years, and in which reposed a magnificent library. It was owned by a wealthy youngster in New York, who came "on" once in a while just to look it over. Betty, to forget the hardness of her life, and to get a look at the numerous books in Graystone's library, broke into the mansion one day, and was discovered there later by Chandler, the owner. He told her to take the key to the mansion, to visit it any time she saw fit, and then he went away.

Later Betty was discovered in the mansion, wearing a gorgeous dress. And Chandler, the owner, who had given her the dress, was found in the mansion also. Promptly the neighbors heard of the awful happening, and Betty was "catapulted" out of the town by the inhabitants, who, in their narrow minded way, had suspected awful things. Betty's mother died shortly afterwards, and Betty was taken to New York, where she became the ward of a wealthy woman. Incidentally, her going to New York resulted in the burning together of a husband and wife who had long been estranged, and in the end Chandler, the millionaire, staid by his watching of Betty, proposed to her and was accepted, and the duo were very happily married. Like the true romance it is, it ends splendidly.

The photograph of this picture is on the cover of the exquisite Fine Arts program of the past.

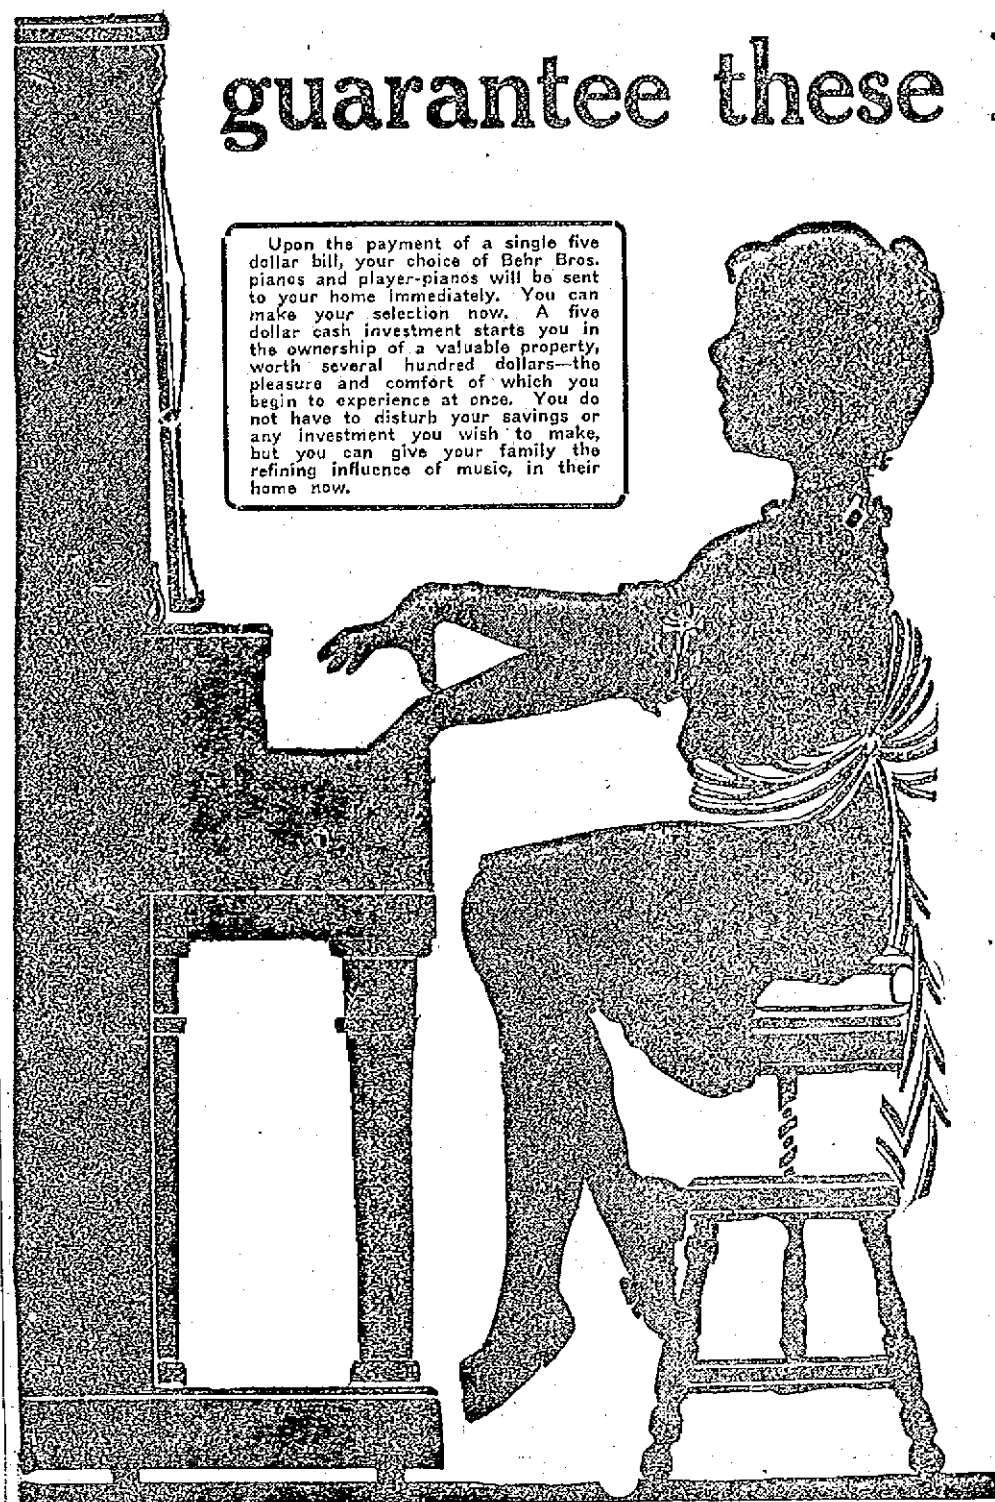

"The Gathering Storm," the fifth chapter of "Gloria's Romance," with Miss Billie Burke in the leading role, grows more interesting every week. Presently, in this chapter, actually proposed Gloria, and is accepted by her, though her friends have done their best to prevent an engagement. Incidentally, a past chapter in the life of Prehen is revealed unexpectedly, and this revelation is bound to play a very

This ad shows how strongly we guarantee these Behr Bros. pianos

Upon the payment of a single five dollar bill, your choice of Behr Bros. pianos and player-pianos will be sent to your home immediately. You can make your selection now. A five dollar cash investment starts you in the ownership of a valuable property, worth several hundred dollars—the pleasure and comfort of which you begin to experience at once. You do not have to disturb your savings or any investment you wish to make, but you can give your family the refining influence of music, in their home now.

WE TOLD YOU fully in four ads. last week about this unusual sale of 125 Behr Bros. pianos. We told you of THE VALUE of the pianos. We told you of what care was taken in their selection.

NOW, TODAY, we tell of the GUARANTEE that has been put on these instruments.

Pianos have always been guaranteed. That is, they have been supposed to be guaranteed. But the guarantees, most of them, have been vague and evasive. They began nowhere—they went nowhere. There were loopholes in them. They were made up—very largely—of "ifs and ands."

But when this sale was planned, both the manufacturers and ourselves decided to get up a guarantee that meant something; to make a guarantee in FACT as well as in NAME.

Here it is; you can read it and judge for yourself. In our opinion it is the STRONGEST guarantee ever placed upon a piece of merchandise ANYWHERE or at ANY TIME. If you can write one stronger, we will gladly sign it.

OUR GUARANTEE

We, Behr Bros. & Co., and the undersigned sellers, jointly guarantee PIANO No. — for the period of five years from date. Any defects in material or workmanship appearing within that time will be replaced with a new one of like grade, without cost, upon its return to the undersigned.

(Signed)

THE BON MARCHE

This guarantee is our Bond of Confidence with the purchaser; the written sign of evidence of our faith in the piano we are offering you.

SUMMING UP THE WHOLE PROPOSITION

Let us sum up this proposition. You get a Behr Bros piano, which has been made and sold for 35 years at three hundred and fifty to four hundred dollars, for two hundred and fifty-seven dollars. This is a saving to you of at least ninety-three dollars.

150

The initial payment necessary to obtain one of these pianos is $25.00 DOLLARS. The first $25.00 is deducted from the price—two hundred and fifty-seven dollars—leaving TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY-TWO DOLLARS to be paid at the rate of ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS a week.

You pay five dollars when you select your piano, leaving two hundred and fifty-two dollars to be paid. To pay this balance, you are allowed one hundred and sixty-eight weeks' time. This makes the payments only one dollar and fifty cents a week. You can GET YOUR MONEY BACK after a thirty days' trial. If you keep the piano you can exchange it, without loss, at any time up to within one year from the day you bought it. Besides this, you get the protection of the strong joint guarantee above mentioned—PROTECT-

The Bon Marche
PRY GOODS CO

YOU CAN ALSO OBTAIN A BEHR BROS. PLAYER ON THE SAME CONDITIONS.

Fifty of these instruments are Behr Bros. player-pianos, which will also be sold on this same plan.

The usual price of Behr Bros. player-pianos has been five hundred to six hundred dollars each. Our sale price is three hundred and ninety-seven dollars.

The player-piano will also be delivered immediately upon the payment of five dollars. The regular payments will be two dollars and twenty-five cents a week—giving you one hundred and seventy-four weeks' time in which to complete your payments.

All of the features of this sale are carried out in offering the Behr Bros. player, with the single exception, that the terms on the player-piano are two dollars and twenty-five cents a week instead of—as on the piano—one dollar and fifty cents a week.

ING YOU ABSOLUTELY FOR FIVE YEARS.

What more can be given? What more can be wished? Can you suggest any further privileges or conditions that would be of advantage to you? It is an opportunity you should take instant advantage of if you ever expect to have music in your home.

PROGRESSIVE NATIONAL COMMITTEE VOTES 32 TO 6 TO SUPPORT HUGHES FOR PRESIDENT

CHICAGO, June 27.—The progressive national committee last night voted to endorse Charles E. Hughes for president. The vote was 32 to 6, with nine declining to vote on the ground that the committee was exceeding its powers in taking such action.

The vote was reached after a lengthy session of the committee, following the reading of Col. Roosevelt's letter declining the nomination and urging Bull Moose support of Mr. Hughes.

After the colonel's letter had been read, Virgil C. Hinshaw, chairman of the national committee of the prohibition party, renewed his offer for the progressive party to amalgamate with the prohibition party. Former Governor Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, who is a candidate for president on the prohibition ticket, and Daniel A. Polling of Boston, temporary chairman of the prohibition national convention, were with Mr. Hinshaw.

The committee decided against opening the session to newspapermen. John M. Parker led the fight for an open session and George W. Perkins opposed it. Mr. Perkins said he had "confidential information" for the committee from Mr. Hughes, outlining the position which the republican nominee takes on various questions.

AT SCHOOL GRADUATIONS

Congressman Rogers Spoke at Varnum on Citizenship—Four Other School Graduations

Five grammar schools, the Greenhage, Washington, Green, Varnum and Pawtucket, held exercises of graduation and sent out large classes last evening. The exercises were well attended by relatives and friends of the graduates, and former graduates of the schools.

The address at the Varnum school was given by Congressman John Jacob Rogers. The singing was directed by Frederick O. Blunt. The class gift to the school was a cast of the "In Quest of the Bear" and the class officers were: Armand Francis Denault, president; Anna Katharine Newcomb, vice president; Verdo Leach, secretary; Victor Brock Darling, treasurer.

"Citizenship" was the subject of Hon. John Jacob Rogers' address. He said in part:

"Our history of a nation, as that nation is today, after all begins with the Civil war and with the ending of the Civil war. Up to that time, for 75 years we had been struggling to get control. It meant that that nation would engulf England, in the future, and her navy could not prevent it. So it was found to be necessary for England to be in a position to throw her armies into Europe. But England did not take counsel of other nations in the matter. She simply had a navy and nothing else. You know what happened in August, 1914. It was the day which the little country of Belgium could furnish, which enabled France to concentrate her armies on the battle line. England, anxious to help, played no part in that onslaught, and oftentimes, as we know full well, the onset of a long war is determinative of the results of that war.

"Think of a battle line 300 miles long and more! I wonder if you know how many miles of that first Great Britain defended for the first six months of the war? Thirty miles; and she did the best she could. Great Britain was not prepared, that is all. She was not ready for the striking of the hour, and France was ready. France had believed in universal service and England had not.

"We have not believed in universal service. The question that these young women and these young men will have to decide, with millions of others in the country during the next ten years, is whether we shall follow the example of France or the example of Great Britain. I am not sure that the moment has arrived when we can meet that question fairly and squarely and be sure that we are deciding it rightly. I am not here to make a plea for universal military service, but I am here to suggest that that problem seems to me to transcend any other problem which the nation will have to meet during its immediate future.

"There are many things about universal service that are not as bad as I think we are apt to paint them at first thought. President Wilson said the other day that he was a believer in universal voluntary service. Former President Roosevelt scornfully attacked that position. It does sound like a contradiction, yet I suspect that what President Wilson had in mind was that if service were made universal by law it might come hard at first, but pretty soon it would become a part of our national life and so much a matter of course that everyone would accept it as natural and proper.

PUT DOWN ROWDYISM

The frequent outbreaks of rowdyism at summer camps in this section and the still more numerous complaints make one wonder if our vacation resorts are sufficiently policed or if something should not be done for the more stringent enforcement of order. Some of these places have become a Mecca for the loafers and undesirable elements of city slums. They come from Boston and other larger cities to quiet and beautiful surroundings where so many decent people try to enjoy respite from work, and they not only make life unbearable for others but eventually give the place of their resort a bad name. Things have surely come to a pretty pass when groups of young people feel that they must explain when they say they are camping at certain places not a hundred miles from Lowell.

Clergymen have found it necessary to preach from local pulpits on the dangers of camp influences on young people, but nevertheless the undesirable element at those places is not so large as one might suppose. A more rigid enforcement of the law all around, and co-operation with the local police department might in a short time banish the few who do so much damage during the summer months.

Judge Enright declared on Saturday that he will deal severely with rowdy campers who are brought before him, and all who enjoy camp life will heartily commend his decision. The comparatively few town officers who deal with the enforcement of law in such places will do well to keep a watchful eye on their respective territory and in some cases they ought to apply for aid if only for a few months in order that camp rowdyism may be made a thing of the past in the places adjacent to this city. There is a sort of sympathetic communication between the gangs that infest some of those places, and when one is dealt with severely the news does not take long in traveling elsewhere.

Five years ago, camp life in the neighborhood of Lowell was all that one might desire, and it is in the power of the authorities to restore the conditions that then existed. The first essential is the banishment of the comparatively few undesirable whose idea of a good time is to break the law and make life unpleasant for everybody else.

THE PROGRESSIVES BALK

Evidences are not lacking to prove that the more sincere element among the progressives does not relish the position in which they have been put by the desertion of Col. Roosevelt, and the percentage of the erstwhile progressive vote that will switch to President Wilson in consequence may be surprising. The county chairman of the progressive party in New York has openly declared that the progressives were not going to be "delivered to the republicans in the support of either their national or state ticket." The Massachusetts progressive state committee is on record as against the nomination or endorsement of Mr. Hughes. Like news comes from Illinois and Michigan, and everywhere influential men of the party have come out in condemnation of their treatment by the leader they trusted not wisely but too well.

If there is any one thing that the progressive party has stood for, it was opposition to machine methods in party politics. Claiming an ideal independence of thought they allowed their destinies to be moulded by a leader who used them for his personal ends, and when he could not use them further handed them over—or thought he did—to the man he had opposed and harshly criticized. They naturally resent being made party to a continued policy of wrecking, and just because they failed to wreck the republican party is no reason they should strive to wreck the fortunes of President Wilson whose honorable personal and official career calls for better treatment. Theodore Roosevelt is very likely to learn that the resentment of his former followers may make more votes for President Wilson than his eleventh hour espousal of the republican platform will make for Mr. Hughes.

No one has yet accused Mr. Bryan of being lacking in political sagacity or insight, and it may be recalled that Mr. Bryan dwelt on the opportunity of the democrats to win the disgruntled progressives after the Chicago fiasco. At this writing the predictions of the democratic leader stand a good chance of coming true, but it is the silent vote that will count eventually and not the speeches made for political effect or the letters written with a like purpose.

MAKE FOURTH SAFE

For a number of years the popular tendency has been towards the celebration of Independence day in a safe and sane way. Noise has still been made in sufficiently impressive quantity and the usual patriotic outbursts have not decreased in intensity, but when the holiday is past there have been few maimed patriots in the hospitals and the number of deaths from accident has been negligible as compared with previous years.

There is an obvious danger that taking thoughtless advantage of the Mexican situation and the preparedness movement throughout the country, the public may step backward this year. Those who think American patriotism synonymous with noise and bluster may once again look for the revolver, the noisy fire cracker and the other dangerous features that made the day hideous before the advent of a better spirit. All communities should forestall this possibility and so far as possible ensure a patriotic celebration that shall make up in genuine American feeling what it shall lack in childish folly.

On the other hand, the more the day shall savor of serious patriotic observance the better. Not America alone but the world from pole to pole has been stirred and disturbed by the great war that has made the old world a human shambles. Great and far reaching questions confront this nation, not only in Mexico but in our adjustment with world affairs after the dawn of peace. The demands of nationhood on our people are not to be met in the spirit of superficial effervescence but in a sober thoughtfulness of our national heritage and our place in the world of the future. Independence day is the nearest day we have to a national holiday, and it ought to be made the medium of bringing home to the American people thoughts that go deeper than the appeal of the midway, the fireworks celebration or the many things that have become associated with the popular observance of the day.

ON THEIR WAY

The wishes of the entire people of Massachusetts go with the members of the Ninth regiment who are on their way to the southern border to be on hand for whatever duty their country may demand of them. Whether or not they shall see active fighting in Mexico it is for the future to decide, but the people of this commonwealth know confidently that they will give a good account of themselves and do credit to their native state. Their reputation for patriotism and honor is already assured and even though peace should prevail and they should return without penetrating into Mexico, they shall always be sure of the respect of the citizens of Massachusetts. Life will go on here in the same old way with its myriad distractions and demands. Industry will still absorb the energies of the people and the amusement places will have their summer crowds, but home groups will be ever mindful of the boys who have gone to Mexico and prayers will be offered up that they may return safely with their country's honor vindicated. Massachusetts has always been first when the call has come from Uncle Sam and it is with pride we realize that our own Ninth has been the first to lead the way to the border.

PARK OBSERVATORY

The suggestion of the park department that an observatory and ornamental observation tower be erected on Fort Hill opens up great possibilities. It would undoubtedly prove a great acquisition to our park system and might be availed of for education purposes of a high order. The Sun has long believed in the plan and has several times suggested it. The chief objection at the present time is the very same that may be made to many another worthy scheme, viz: Can we afford it? Barely has Lowell been confronted with more expensive improvements that simply will have to be attended to. Enumeration is unnecessary—they are well known through the long agitation concerning most of them. We need so many necessary things and we need them so badly that we had better let the observatory go until a more propitious season. If perchance some generous donor should feel his heart strings and his purse strings expand at the thought of the panorama of the heavens as seen from the summit of our beautiful park, there would be general rejoicing, but until some wealthy Lowell citizen takes this fine way of perpetuating his name it is questionable if the city can do much about it.

RAILROADS WOULD ARBITRATE

Faced by demands from conductors, engineers, firemen and brakemen the railroads of the country propose a federal inquiry and arbitration, thus making the question really a public one and striving to arrange it in full view of the country. It is a wise decision and it marks a radical departure from the time when both railroads and employees were more or less hostile to every suggestion of arbitration. If the interstate commerce commission or some other disinterested and responsible body should now take the railroad situation as a whole and strive to arrange matters in a spirit of fairness and justice and with the interests of the American public in mind a precedent might be established that would ultimately mean much to the railroads, the employees and the American people who are most vitally concerned.

Where is my soldier boy tonight?

Major Charles A. Stevens of Lowell was assisted by Lieut. Col. Buck to answer questions in regard to mustering in and other matters of a like nature propounded by the crowd of newspaper men on the field. Having had experience in the past with members of the Fourth Estate he was perfectly competent for the task.

Teddy and Margaret

At the head of L. company, Ninth regiment at Camp Whitney, was a cage containing a bantam rooster, known as "Teddy Roosevelt," and a bantam hen, known as "Margaret Foley." There were also three kittens, the black and white one having been named "Carrie Nation," the two gray and white kittens being named "Henry Ford" and "Billy Sunday." It may not be necessary to say that the happy family was the centre of much attention.

Something Doing Then

Little Willie came to his mother with the following query: "Mother, what would you do if someone broke the large vase in the parlor?" "I would whip him," responded mother. After a few seconds elapsed Willie, with a broad grin, said: "Well, you better get ready. Papa broke it."

Waiting

The man getting his hair cut noticed that the barber's dog, which was lying on the floor beside the chair, had his eyes fixed on his master at work. "My dog, that," said the customer. "He is, sir." "He seems very fond of watching you cut hair?" "I don't think, sir," explained the barber. "You see, sometimes I make a mistake and snip off a little bit of a customer's ear."—Boston Transcript.

Pays All Losses

"We are spending more money than we can afford, my dear," said hubby. "Can't you do something to reduce the household expenses?" "I'm doing the best I can, love," replied his wife. "The grocer in months, but the butcher or the grocer in months, but I simply cannot get credit for mattress tickets, and my losses at bridge have to be paid in cash, too."

Obliging an Old Master

On the occasion of the death of a chief of one of the department bureaus in Washington, a clerk in that bureau was dashing madly down the street when he was stopped by a friend who asked: "Why the deuce are you in such a tearing hurry?" "I am going," explained the clerk, "to the funeral of my chief, and there is nothing he hates like unpunctuality."

Making It All Right

Katherine and Margaret found themselves seated next to each other at a dinner party and immediately became confidential. "Jolly told me that you told her that secret I told you not to tell her," whispered Margaret. "Oh, isn't she a mean thing!" gasped Katherine. "Why, I told her not to tell you," returned Margaret. "I told her I wouldn't tell you she told me—so don't tell her I did."

On Judge Lindsey

"They used to tell a pretty good story on Judge Ben B. Lindsey of social ver," who has been called "the social reformer," said Rep. C. B. Thimblelake, of the second Colorado district. "It seems that he was taking lunch one hot day with Judge Lindsey. 'I see you are drinking coffee. That's a drink that heats you up considerably,' said Lindsey. 'Sure. In this hot weather you ought to drink iced drinks, Judge—sharp, iced drinks. Did you ever try iced gin and ginger ale?' 'Well, I've tried several fellows who have,' said Lindsey."

Horr Della Managed

A great deal of noise arose in the nursery one morning, and since it gave no promise of subsiding, Mrs. Odell hurried in that direction. She found the baby howling and might and main, and the new nursemaid sitting calmly by. "Well, Della, this is a terrible noise!" cried Mrs. Odell, angrily. "What is the matter? Can't you keep the baby quiet?" "Certainly, ma'am," replied the girl, "but I can't keep him quiet unless I let him make a noise, ma'am."

Whirlwind, the Drummer

They were talking about a promising young man who had failed to make good as a travelling salesman. The first man said to the other man: "It was queer about that boy. He seemed to be a regular whirlwind. His first trip was a rattling success, but all he brought back from his second trip was a bunch of fresh whirled." "What was it you called him—a whirlwind?" "Yes."

Cocoanut Oil Makes

A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Just plain coconut oil and cocoanut oil, which is pure and entirely greaseless, is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply massage your hair with warm water and milk. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and stays bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can not mislead cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Some Historic Puns

The English are declared to take their pleasures seriously. Perhaps they do, but on the other hand, they often show an admirably gallant gaiety in the face of danger, difficulty and discouraging circumstances. Throughout centuries of English history, jokes, from sources military, literary, noble and even royal, have occasionally enlivened momentous events. The sober historian who writes fully of the disastrous Battle of Culloden, which decided the final fall of the royal house of Stuart, when he relates that the advance of General's Cope, Wade and Hawley was delayed by the snowed glens and icy slopes of wild Scotland, condescends to record in a footnote that the opposing forces drew mutual encouragement from this punning couplet:

Cope could not cope, nor Wade wade through the snow,
Nor Hawley haul his cannon to the foe.

When in 1797, the fleet of Admiral Duncan was about to engage that of the Dutch Admiral De Winter, the British captain came aboard the flagship for instructions. They received them in an address of memorable brevity and point.

This enthusiastic compliance with his advice resulted in a brilliant victory.

Perhaps the briefest and wittiest of historic English puns was the Latin announcement in a single word of the conquest of Sicily, attributed to the conqueror, Sir Charles Napier: "Peccavi" (I have sinned).—Youth's Companion.

The American Flag

"Your flag and my flag, and how it flies today
In your land and my land and half
Rose red and blood red its stripes forever gleam, Snow white and soul white, the good
Sky blue and true blue with stars that gleam
The gloried guidon of the day,
A shelter through the night."

Your flag and my flag, and oh, how much it holds!

Your land and my land, secure within its folds;
Your heart and my heart beat quick, heart at the sight,
Sun-kissed and wind-tossed, the red and blue and white;
The one flag—the great flag—the flag for me and you Glorifies all else being, the red and white and blue."

A meeting of the men of the Sacred Heart parish will be held in the school hall this evening at 8 o'clock, at which considerable important business will be discussed. Before the business session there will be a concert by some of Lowell's most talented singers. Among those to appear will be Commissioner James E. Donnelly, Martin H. Maguire, John Davlin and others.

Indoor Life Makes Fat

TRY OIL OF KOREIN TO KEEP WEIGHT DOWN, OR TO REDUCE SUPERFLUOUS FAT

People who are confined within doors and who are deprived of fresh, invigorating air and exercise must take precaution to guard against the danger of indoor life. It is a danger to the vital organs of the body. Lack of exercise in the fresh air is said to weaken the blood, so that it is unable to produce strong muscles and vitality and the formation of unsightly and unhealthy fat is the result.

If you are 13 or 20 pounds above normal weight you are daily drawing on your reserve strength and are constantly lowering your vitality by carrying this excess burden. Any person who is satisfied in their own mind that they are too stout or advised to go to a Dr. Woods & Co. oil of korein capsules, and take one after each meal and one just before retiring at night.

UNABLE TO RESCUE MEN

LIEUT. SHACKLETON FAILED TO REACH TWENTY-TWO LEFT ON ELEPHANT ISLAND

LONDON, June 27.—Lieut. Sir Ernest Shackleton has been unable to rescue the men, numbering 22 and comprising the main body of his Antarctic expedition, who were left on Elephant Island. This information was received in a despatch from Shackleton from Port Stanley, Falkland Islands.

The explorer has evidently returned on the steamer which had been placed at his disposal by the Uruguayan government for the purpose of effecting the rescue of his men. According to his despatch the ice conditions had so increased in severity that he was unable to get nearer than 20 miles to the island.

He thinks that there is still hope for the men, however, as there is an excellent chance that they will be able to survive on short rations, supplemented by penguins, until another rescue party, provided with an ice breaker, can push through to them.

The steamer Insitutopessa, provided by the Uruguayan government, left Montevideo on June 8, with Lieutenant Shackleton aboard, to succor the men on Elephant Island.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

MEETING OF THOSE INTERESTED AT HOME OF DR. HUNTRESS—PURPOSE OF ORGANIZATION.

Members of the American Legion in Lowell and all who may be interested in the organization are invited to attend an informal meeting at the home of Dr. Leonard Huntress, 48 Fort Hill avenue, from 7 to 9:30 o'clock Wednesday evening of this week. The invitation is extended by Leonard Huntress, a member of the Legion, who is enjoying a brief vacation in this city.

The purpose of the American Legion is to enroll in the service of the country a great body of volunteers, who, while not desirous of serving at the front in case of war, are willing to be of service in any other capacity. It is patterned after the German ideal of industrial and social mobilization, and one of its activities is to collect statistics that would be of use to the government in time of war. It is for the central policy of preparedness and in the organization are some of the greatest industrial leaders in the country, the heads of great corporations, and the oldest army and navy men in the service. Ex-Presidents Roosevelt and Taft are members of the honorary governing council. The possibilities of the Legion are vast, though but vaguely understood as yet in this country.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

Five members of the camp have enlisted either in the United States army or navy since the last meeting. The meeting adjourned to the second Monday in July.

F. H. GUNTHER'S ESCAPE

HE WAS CAUGHT IN BELTING AND NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH IN BIG GEARS

Frank H. Gunther, superintendent of the Dracut water supply district and chief of the fire department, had a narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon when his clothing caught in a large belt at the pumping station. Fortunately, however, he only received slight bruises about the body and face. Mr. Gunther was repairing the on-line of the plant when suddenly his sleeve caught in a driving belt which moves at a velocity of 150 revolutions per minute. He was whirled into space landing only a few inches from the pumping apparatus. Mr. Gunther was later removed to his home in an ambulance.

SPRINGFIELD HOLDS LEAD

Flynn's Team Superior With the Willow—Planters Beat Teams on Defense—Lowell Improves

Lowell made a slight gain in both batting and fielding last week, according to the latest figures compiled of the averages of the Eastern league teams. The locals added seven points to their batting average and now are going at a .236 clip while they also added one marker to their fielding percentage.

The Springfield and New London outfits remain the best batting and fielding teams respectively. The former is batting at a .267 clip and the latter sports a fielding average of .963. The hitting throughout the league last week was excellent. Lawrence was the only club that lost ground. The Barstons had nine points clipped off their former figures. Five teams improved in fielding, four lost ground and one retained the same figures it had last week. Lynn, New London and Portland all gained considerable ground on Springfield in batting. Springfield leads the league in five distinctive departments. The Green Sox have scored the greatest number of runs, made the most hits, lead in total bases and have knocked out the largest number of two-base hits and are showing the way in home run hitting. They have cracked out 72 doubles and have made 13 continuous trips around the bases on good-night raps. Portland tops the circuit in hitting out triples. The Duffs have made 15. Lynn is leading in base stealing. The Shoemakers have a record of 78. Springfield with 69 is second. New London with 44 leads in sacrifice hits. New London has made the least number of errors, 52. Lynn leads in making misplays with 103 to its credit. New Haven has gone past the century mark in the error column, having 102 slipups. The table below includes Thursday's games:

The Braves crept up on Philadelphia yesterday by taking both games of a double bill. The Braves are now but five full games behind Brooklyn, the league leaders.

Tom Hughes is going along finely for the Braves. After Reulbach had been taken out to allow a pinch hitter to bat for him, Tom was sent to the box and held the Morans scoreless for two innings.

FASTER BASEBALL SURE

Youngsters Should Add Strength to Lowell Team—Jake Boulters Well Fixed

Several important and not unexpected happenings took place in the local baseball situation last week, and mostly for the better.

Mr. John Connor relinquished his interest in the Lowell team during the week, and Owner Roach upon taking up the reins under new conditions immediately made a move that looks good to the fans, namely the release of Harry Lord, and the leave of absence given to Barrows which undoubtedly will mean that he will not return.

With due respect to Lord, the very day he quit the team the boys seemed to play with renewed life, showing better form than at any time previously during the year, though of course they were playing New Haven and New Haven isn't going well these days.

It is understood that Lord took a Portland newspaperman that the Lowell papers didn't give him the best kind of treatment. Whether he made the statement or not doesn't matter, for whatever the local papers said about him was based upon his work as a manager and as a player. The papers always show a disposition to boost the home team and its manager and they often give them soft words when they should be criticizing adversely. Had Mr. Lord given the newspapers an opportunity to say something good about him they would have done it cheerfully, and as a matter of fact the newspapers were the last to make the statement that the ex-big leaguer was a disappointment.

Both Lord and Barrows failed to deliver the goods in accordance with the salaries doled out to them on the first and 15th of the month, regardless of the weather or the condition of the box office. Lord it is said drew down about $400 per month, while Barrows received something like $250. Assuming that these figures are accurate, for baseball managements, as a general rule dislike for obvious reasons to disclose the exact amounts paid their players, Messrs. Roach and Connor were paying two men $650 per month for their work, with no prospects at the close of the season from them, as they were ex-big leaguers, on the downward path. For that $650 per month the management could have engaged four young lively and promising players who are on the upward path in baseball and not only have the benefit of their services for the season but with the prospect of developing out of the four one or two future big leaguers on whose sale to faster company they might realize a substantial amount of money. Thus with Lord and Barrows nothing to offer for their $650 beyond their services, the management naturally expected and was entitled to exceptionally good service from them. They should have been the star performers on the team. But they were not, and hence the management cannot be criticized for allowing them to go, despite what they have been capable of doing in the past. Undoubtedly the management will pick up a couple of fast young players to take the places left vacant by Lord and Barrows and the team will be going better than ever by July 4. There was talk to the effect that

Charlie Keilchner is to return to Lowell bringing Parker with him. Parker will probably come as he belongs with the Lowell team, and he would be welcomed, but Keilchner is back on his old summer job that of scout for the St. Louis' Americans, and it is hardly possible that he can be induced to come to Lowell. Meanwhile Joe Kihellen will manage the team on the field, and a better choice could not be made, for Joe knows more baseball than anybody else on the team, and has a good cool head, and is a conscientious hard-working ball player in the bargain. Furthermore he is well liked by his team-mates and that has a good deal to do with the harmony and discipline of a team.

Many were disappointed upon learning that Jake Boulters could not be secured and yet were pleased to hear that Jake was in right at Bridgeport. Boulters was one of the most popular ball players who ever donned a uniform in Lowell, not alone for his playing ability, for he wasn't the best ball player whoever appeared here, but because he was a good player, and always played his best, while off the diamond he was equally well known and liked as a good mixer and a gentleman at all times. After leaving Lowell, Jake went to Bridgeport, and while managing that team a few years ago played third base for 40 games without an error, which is a pretty acceptable record on the hot corner. Jake is managing the baseball teams of the Remington Arms company of Bridgeport, and undoubtedly is drawing down good money with the assurance of a steady job for the winter, though from the days since Jake started out as a pitcher for the Boston Nationals he has always had a steady job waiting for him in South St. Louis whenever he elected to go back to it. By securing the services of Boulters the Bridgeport Arms company slipped something over on Lowell which recalls the fact that a few months ago the same concern attempted to do a similar stunt on this city, but were prevented from accomplishing their purpose through the activity of Mr. H. B. Smith, the efficient employment manager of the U. S. Cartridge Co. Just as the big league ball teams do, the big league munitions plants send out scouts looking for minor league stars and a couple of scouts from Bridgeport came here one day looking for Cartridge shop machinists to quit Lowell and go to Bridgeport. Mr. Smith got wind of their game and called the turn on them and they fled themselves to other fields. But the baseball scouts of the Remington Arms company got Jake hooked up at that time when Lowell didn't need him, and hence can't have him now.

But Lowell isn't the only city in the Eastern league that has come to the conclusion that ex-big leaguers are not a paying proposition for Wagner has departed and others may yet get the hook in favor of younger and better performing players. Just give them a little good weather and the different managers will furnish some lively baseball for the remainder of the season.

er. Tuero got by in the first encounter with the Merlins, but the Merlins found him rather easy in the second, securing 15 hits.

Marlin of New London and Tucker of Portland had a fine pitching duel at New London, the Planters winning, 2 to 1.

Harry Lord, deposed manager of the Lowell club, blames the Lowell newspaper writers for the poor showing of the Lowell club. He says:

"One of the principle reasons why the Lowell club is not up in the race any farther is because of the adverse criticism by certain sporting writers in that town. This knocking never did any baseball club any good such as Lowell writers hand out, and no ball player can do his best under those conditions."

We cannot agree with Lord in his statement about the Lowell writers, as they have always in our opinion, been loyal to baseball and big leaguers for the Lowell club. They may have criticized, but probably justly, and with the sole aim that such criticism might result in better things for the Lowell baseball public. Lord takes the appearance of a poor loser when he reports such a weak alibi for his failure.—Lawrence Telegram.

EASTERN LEAGUE COMMENT

It would be nice to see the Lowell team trim New London in its present condition after the two shut-outs sustained recently.

Lowell is now tied with Worcester and Lawrence for fifth place in the league. It is the first time that Lowell has had even a peek at the first division for several weeks.

Jack Dell, now playing in the outfield for Lawrence, was with Bridgeport for about two games. He was tried out at first base. In five times at bat he scored a run, made one hit, had 15 put-outs, one assist and one error.

Torphy injured his shoulder in an attempt to tag a man sliding into second in the fifth inning of the game with Bridgeport Saturday, and was obliged to go to the bench. He is expected to return to the game today, however.

Eddie Henderson is still with the Lowell team and works out daily in practice. Local fans will be interested to watch his attempt to come back in the box.

Irving Porter, the speedy Lynn outfielder, back in his old place as lead-off man for Lou Perry after a long vacation as a result of an injury, Irving will be a great help to the Shoemakers.

Tuero attempted to duplicate his recent feat yesterday when he faced New Haven in both games of a double-header.

SIXTH NOT YET CALLED

Rumors That it Was Ordered Out are Unfounded—Men Wanting to Enlist Visit Armory

While the members of Company M of the Ninth regiment are on the first of their four days' trip to the Mexican border, the other three Lowell companies, C, G and K, of the Sixth regiment, are preparing a list of names of young men willing to join the ranks to bring the companies to full war strength in case they are called to service.

Today was quiet at the state armory in Westford street. Except for the occasional appearance of an enthusiastic young American who wanted to know how to enlist so that he could go to Mexico immediately, there was very little going on. The absence of the recruits who have spent their time in the building since the regular company departed last week was very noticeable today, the last of these "lookies" having gone yesterday.

One of the incidents that broke up the dullness at the armory this forenoon was the appearance of five young men, all from out-of-town, who wanted to enlist and start for Mexico with the Sixth. The new, it seems, had come from Lawrence where they had hung around the armory from 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 10:30 o'clock last night waiting for a recruiting officer, but according to their story none showed up. So anxious were they for "action" that they came to the city and immediately sought the state armory. When informed by Lt. Cashin of Co. K that the three local companies were only taking names of prospective recruits in the event of the regiment being called out, the men were sadly disappointed. They urged him to get them to Framingham some way and then the lieutenant communicated with Lowell officers in charge of the recruits at camp to learn whether any more men were needed. The men were promised an opportunity to enlist if they pass the medical examination.

Sixth Not Called Out

A rumor reached the armory about 10 o'clock that the three local companies of the Sixth regiment had been ordered to report at 4 o'clock this afternoon but this was found to be without foundation. About the same time this report was heard, Lieut. Cashin received a telephone call from the superior officers in the camp at South Framingham and nothing was said about the Sixth going away so it was given little attention. It was said that if the regiment should be called, officers in camp would be notified and they would flash the news to the officers in charge here immediately.

Many Inquiries

Numerous telephone calls inquiring about the course of Co. M and the possibilities of C, G and K were received today. One woman, the mother of seven children, called Lieut. Cashin for advice. She said that she had been notified that her husband had joined one of the companies and was on his way to Mexico. She did not know which company he was with or any other information about him. The woman said that her husband went away without even saying good bye to her, he having said a friend to telephone her that he was off.

MANY DECLINES AT START

LOSSES—PRICES HARDENED LATER

NEW YORK, June 27.—Stocks continued under the influence of today's operations, declines far outnumbering gains. Losses of a point or more were recorded by Texas Co., American Can, U. S. Smelting, United Fruit and Maxwell Motors but these were offset by corresponding advances in Mexican Petroleum, Industrial Alcohol, Crucible Steel, and other equipment issues. U. S. Steel opened slightly lower, soon made up more than its loss and as promptly yielded again under pressure of large offerings. Rails were negligible factors with an irregular market.

Prices hardened in all quarters later, various developments, such as the higher rates granted to transcontinental roads and rumors of large orders by our government to some of the munitions companies, contributing to that end. Reading, yesterday's weak feature, displayed sudden activity on strength on its advance of 2 points. Crucible extended its gain to 3 1/2 and United States Steel suggested substantial absorption on an extreme rise of 1 1/4. There was marked improvement in other industries, shipping shares and specialties.

Trading slackened a noon with recovery well sustained. Bonds were irregular.

Improvement became more general in the afternoon, sentiment being further stimulated by the increased dividend on Anaconda and the extra disbursement on Central Leather.

United States Steel was the outstanding feature, extending its gain to almost 2 points.

Price movements were somewhat confused in the final hour. Mexicans and some leading rails losing ground, while coppers made further gains. The closing was firm.

OPERATIONS BY TROOPS

At Verdun, Paris reports French successes in local operations near the Thimont works, north of the citadel where the recent German drive resulted in a gain of considerable ground. Berlin denies that the French have reaped any advantage from these attacks.

Concerted Attack

Today's despatches give little indication of the general course of events within the past few hours, headed by Franco-Belgian front where the British artillery has been notably active for two or three days. The latest reports from both Berlin and London, however, lend color to the somewhat prevalent belief that the long-threatened concerted attack by the entente allies on the various fronts is in preparation, if not in actual process of execution.

ORPET ON THE STAND FOR COAL AND LUMBER

YOUNG MAN ACCUSED OF MURDER OF MARIAN LAMBERT TESTIFIES TODAY

Waukegan, Ill., June 27.—Will H. Orpet, charged with the murder of Marian Lambert, resumed the witness stand today.

Ralph F. Potter, of counsel for the defense, asked about the water and molasses which Orpet sent to Marian "to relieve her mind." One of these bottles he sent to her, the other he brought to her on Feb. 9, the day of her death.

"I bought the bottle of six-ounce size of Otto Peterson and filled it two-thirds full in my room," he said.

He testified yesterday that Marian when he met her in Helms wood refused to accept it, saying "that will not do me any good."

Every ear was strained as Attorney Potter asked, "What were your relations with Celesta Youker?"

"There was a tacit understanding between us. I had known her six years."

"Did she return your affections?"

"Yes."

"You were engaged?"

"No, there was an understanding; no date was set for marriage; I had never formally asked her to marry me."

"Did you tell Mr. Dady or anyone else that you saw Marian take poison?"

"No."

Interrogation for the state was by Attorney David R. Joslyn, who was assisting State's Attorney Dady. He asked about an automobile ride while Marian and Orpet took last September.

It was on the trip that the relations between the young pair passed the bounds of morality, the witness admitted.

"You were desperately in love with her, weren't you?" asked Mr. Joslyn.

"No, then; that came later, judging from my letters."

"You can't remember, independently of the letters, how your love developed?"

"No, sir."

U. S. CARTRIDGE BOSSES

NIGHT INSPECTORS HELD A BANQUET AT PAGE'S-JOLLY TIME ENJOYED

The night inspectors of the U. S. Cartridge Co., about 60 in number, gathered around the festive board at the D. L. Page Co. banquet hall last evening and enjoyed their first annual banquet. The affair proved very entertaining and the organizers of the event were highly complimented for the success obtained.

The hall had been handsomely decorated for the occasion and the place resembled a veritable flower garden. There was an orchestra in attendance and during the evening excellent music was furnished. The evening's program consisted of vocal and instrumental selections as well as appropriate addresses by prominent guests.

At 8 o'clock the guests discussed a very appetizing dinner, following which were speeches presided over by Frank S. O'Brien, who introduced as toastmaster, Frank H. Haines. A brief address of welcome was delivered by the toastmaster and Mr. Weston, formerly with the Lee Dockstad Co., down under the water and as Tiny Tim and Tiny Thistle came along was coming up with a fat bug in his mouth. They all shook hands with their guests and Mamma Frog asked them to sit down beside her on the log and watch the children swim.

William J. Robinson, assistant superintendent of the company, was the first speaker. He gave a very interesting talk on "Inspection." His remarks were well received inasmuch as they touched upon the work of those present. John P. Kenney spoke very interestingly on "Welfare," and he urged the men present to take a lively interest in the association bearing that name, among the employees of the company. Other speakers were Oscar, the night supervisor, who spoke of "Production," and Mr. Smith, who took for his subject, "Sorting Department." A letter of regret for unavoidable absence was received from H. B. Coho, business director. The evening's program closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the audience.

SLEEPYTIME TALES

TINY THISTLES VISIT TO THE FROGS

Once upon a time, Tiny Tim said to Tiny Thistle, "We are going to visit the frogs today, so get your hat and we will start right away." They walked down the hill past Rollo, across the meadows and into a big cool swamp, and soon came to the frogs' home. Their home was under a big rock just at the edge of a stream and there were six little frogs in the family and their mother and father.

Their father was away getting something for them to eat and their mother was sitting on a log in the sun while the six children were playing in the water. The biggest one, Mamma Frog, was sitting on a log and as Tiny Tim and Tiny Thistle came along was coming up with a fat bug in his mouth. They all shook hands with their guests and Mamma Frog asked them to sit down beside her on the log and watch the children swim.

Tiny Tim asked them if they didn't want to have a race and they all thought that was a fine idea. When Tiny Tim said "go," they were to jump in and swim to a clump of bushes and then back again.

When they were ready he yelled "go," and off they went. Tiny Thistle, clapping her little hands and shouting, "Go! Go! as fast as you can!"

First came the big one, then the others and it seemed only a second until they reached the bushes and less than a minute when they were back again. The biggest one won the race and Tiny Thistle crowned him the victor with a daisy. Tiny Tim had picked for her.

Mother Frog suggested that they give their friends a ride down the brook and handed them a long-stemmed lily-pod. They put it in the water and Tiny Thistle sat on it while the six frogs took hold of the edges of the lily with their mouths, three on one side and three on the other, and off they swam down the stream.

What a fine ride she had all among the lovely white lilies and they all nodded to her as she passed and asked her to come and see them some day. Some tiny fishes swam along beside her and in their excitement to see and talk with her almost upset the boat.

The frogs felt very proud of their charge and were very careful that nothing should happen to her. When they came back it was time to go home, but they promised to come again. When Father Frog came home they told him about their happy day and their new friends and he promised the next time they came he would stay at home and see them, too.

THE LADY'S WORKBAG

The day of the polished table and the housekeeper's pride is at hand. Also the day when the careful housekeeper is always in hot water, so to speak, for fear some defacing mark will appear upon her beloved table top. She fills her linen drawers, consequently, with piles of asbestos and other non-heat-conducting materials to prevent the fatal scarring. She is wise also who provides dainty washable coverings for these mats, so that they will not prove eyesores on an otherwise beautifully set table.

There are numerous ways of covering the mats, but perhaps the most useful and practical in every way are the mats of plain white linen, embroidered in white, which can be slipped off at a moment's notice and plunged into the general wash. The embroidery on these covers may be as elaborate or as simple as one chooses. A monogram or initial is very often their only ornament. Place a few "thousand flowers" or "lazy daisies" on your cover, and you will have something worth looking at as well as worth using.

The scalloping is done through two thicknesses of linen, cut to match the size of plate or platter for which they are designed. The embroidery of the front piece is done first, of course, as it could not be very well done after the two thicknesses of linen are scalloped together.

A cute pair of slippers to slip on baby's feet this coming summer could be made of linen or linen trimmed and lined bound. Both parts of the white ones are bound with lawn tape, stitched on. The upper is then overlaid together at the back, and overhauled onto the sole. Two holes are punched at each side of the front opening, and laced with baby-ribbon.

The practical little cap that "opens into a straight piece for the laundry" seems almost as if designed for the proverbially dirty boy. At any rate, its simplicity offers a few minutes saved at the ironing board, which is a big consideration, on a hot day. It is fashioned of fine white rep. The band is double and about three inches wide, while the crown is cut in one piece and faced to admit of a confining rubber.

By an ingenious placing of snap fasteners, the crown is snapped into place on the band, which is fastened at one side by the same method. The crown size is regulated by the rubber band, so that it may stretch with the lengthening of the band, thus requiring only the adjustment of the one set of fasteners on the band itself to make the cap an inch or more larger. The embroidery is of the simplest, being but two narrow bands outlined in white and filled in with diagonal stitches of coarse blue floss.

Dainty bedroom accessories in the way of curtains, bedspreads, bureau and dresser scarfs, can be easily made at small cost of striped or checked gingham. Blue and white is a clean, cool color to select.

For the bedspread use coarse white face insertion about an inch and a half wide to join the breadths together down the center and also to place at the heading of a ruffle eight inches wide that is placed on each side and across the bottom of the spread. Shams for pillows are edged with narrow insertion and a four-inch ruffle. For the bureau scarf use three 12-inch squares of gingham, joined and edged with insertion.

The window curtains are made perfectly plain, excepting for a ruffle across the end headed with insertion. A deep valance across the top is edged with a narrow ruffle also. With a blue and white cotton rug on the floor this makes a most attractive room for a young girl. Gingham is very inexpensive and launders beautifully.

Have you a little girl who you want to train in the domestic way she should go? And do the little fingers work clumsily over long seams and uninteresting centerpieces? Why not suggest some interesting embroidery for her afternoons when it is much better for little ones to be quietly employed than running about in the scorching sunshine. There are so many cute little articles that a child may make which she can use afterward herself and which will make her doubly proud of her handiwork.

There is the little play apron in checked linen, which another can run it up in no time on the machine, binding the edge with white bias binding, which she can buy all cut and pressed ready to stitch into place over the raw edges. She may make one deep pocket across the front and print or write on it the words "Play Time" or draw if she can a group of scattered toys.

Play aprons turned up halfway and stitched into a series of deep pockets are most useful and admit of as much or as little handwork as mothers see fit to impose. Towels, of the small guest size variety, make excellent excuses for easy stitching.

One of the most difficult things for the home dressmaker to accomplish is the proper cutting of striped materials. To be able to cut a striped dress is a proof that you are by no means a novice at the art of dressmaking.

Skirts are always cut first. Lay the material out flat on the cutting table, and if there is no "up-and-down" to the material, you will be able to find the grain in each other, cutting the material in an economical way. Remember to have the line of small perforations found in the center of each pattern run straight with a stripe. This will cause each cut edge to be slightly bias, and, when joined will look far better than if a bias edge was joined to the straight.

The center of the front gore must, of course, be on a stripe. Double your material before cutting in order to have both sides exactly alike. When cutting sleeves, be sure the material is doubled, and save yourself the trouble of having one sleeve different from the other, thus ruining the garment. Stripes should run straight from the shoulder to the waist in straight down the center of the front and straight down the center of the back when cutting the bodice. Always allow plenty of material for seams when striped material is used, and be sure that the stripes match in the joining of seams.

When traveling or when loaded with trunks or suit cases, as so many young women are, skirt hangers made at home take up no room. To use simply pin two of them into the skirt band and hang on a nail. A large safety pin and a brass ring is needed for each hanger. A narrow thread of any color may be used. Begin by crocheting a row of single crochet over the top of safety pin, making about 35 stitches. Then crochet back and forth, wrapping thread once on each side and taking off two stitches on a row. Repeat until you have nine rows, then crochet on ring and around it and the hanger is finished.

Have you a little girl who you want to train in the domestic way she should go? And do the little fingers work clumsily over long seams and uninteresting centerpieces? Why not suggest some interesting embroidery for her afternoons when it is much better for little ones to be quietly employed than running about in the scorching sunshine. There are so many cute little articles that a child may make which she can use afterward herself and which will make her doubly proud of her handiwork.

There is the little play apron in checked linen, which another can run it up in no time on the machine, binding the edge with white bias binding, which she can buy all cut and pressed ready to stitch into place over the raw edges. She may make one deep pocket across the front and print or write on it the words "Play Time" or draw if she can a group of scattered toys.

Play aprons turned up halfway and stitched into a series of deep pockets are most useful and admit of as much or as little handwork as mothers see fit to impose. Towels, of the small guest size variety, make excellent excuses for easy stitching.

One of the most difficult things for the home dressmaker to accomplish is the proper cutting of striped materials. To be able to cut a striped dress is a proof that you are by no means a novice at the art of dressmaking.

Skirts are always cut first. Lay the material out flat on the cutting table, and if there is no "up-and-down" to the material, you will be able to find the grain in each other, cutting the material in an economical way. Remember to have the line of small perforations found in the center of each pattern run straight with a stripe. This will cause each cut edge to be slightly bias, and, when joined will look far better than if a bias edge was joined to the straight.

The center of the front gore must, of course, be on a stripe. Double your material before cutting in order to have both sides exactly alike. When cutting sleeves, be sure the material is doubled, and save yourself the trouble of having one sleeve different from the other, thus ruining the garment. Stripes should run straight from the shoulder to the waist in straight down the center of the front and straight down the center of the back when cutting the bodice. Always allow plenty of material for seams when striped material is used, and be sure that the stripes match in the joining of seams.

When traveling or when loaded with trunks or suit cases, as so many young women are, skirt hangers made at home take up no room. To use simply pin two of them into the skirt band and hang on a nail. A large safety pin and a brass ring is needed for each hanger. A narrow thread of any color may be used. Begin by crocheting a row of single crochet over the top of safety pin, making about 35 stitches. Then crochet back and forth, wrapping thread once on each side and taking off two stitches on a row. Repeat until you have nine rows, then crochet on ring and around it and the hanger is finished.

SAID GOOD-BYE FIVE INQUESTS

Mothers the Very Last to Leave Camp—See Boys March Away

BOSTON, June 27.—Scattered all over the great hot, sun-dried field at Framingham yesterday were large numbers of a certain sort of women. They spoke very little; their eyes were mild and good, but red with crying; mostly all dressed in black, mostly very humble in appearance; their eyes constantly seemed fixed upon some certain point, as though they were watching something.

These women were the mothers of the army. They were the very last to go home. Few of the thousands who visited the great field yesterday and saw the troops marching off, to the huzzas and cheers of the crowds that lined the streets to the entrainment, failed to notice these women.

There was one at the station. She was small, with white hair, dressed simply, in a black skirt and a little hat. In one hand she held a little handkerchief. The crowds jostled her and pushed, but she did not seem to mind, and moved very noiselessly out of people's way. She waited long for a car to take her to the field, but none came that had room for her. So she started to walk, quite alone.

She walked the whole way, that hot, blazing road, with automobiles whizzing by her. Every little while she'd wipe her forehead with her handkerchief.

The writer saw her again at the field. She was looking for the Ninth regiment. Timidly she asked somebody and was directed. Suddenly a young fellow came out of a knot of soldiers, and thrust his arms about the little woman and kissed her. She said nothing about the journey—the hot road walked—only wiped her eyes and looked at her boy. He led her out and bought her a soda at a fountain, and talked softly to her.

She was only one. On a bag of acquaintances sat a woman. She said she was Mrs. J. M. Winters of Somerville. She was crying, too. Her son, Charlie, of B company, Fifth Infantry, was going. In a moment he came up. "He supports me—and two little children," said the mother. "I'm too old to take care of them, and they haven't any mother. But he's going," and she stopped. The young man tried to cheer her up. He had seen service as a regular in the Ninety-sixth coast artillery. He had two children—Eddie, 2, and Charlie Jr., 3. Well, he marched away with his company, a half hour later.

Off to sea side, near the Eighth's encampment, sat a young soldier and his mother. One glance at their faces cast in the same mood, told the story. She was a widow from Gloucester, and he her only boy, Raymond. Turner of G company, Eighth Infantry, was his name. They talked a long time together.

After he sounded a bugle—he helped his mother to her feet—he kissed her, and went off. She stood still, never moved till the last man was gone. Then she walked slowly down the dusty road, alone.

They all had names, but it seems unnecessary to give them. They were just mothers.

Inquiry Into Recent Fatalities Started at Police Court

Five inquests were held in the Market building this morning, four before Judge John J. Pickman and one before Judge Frederic A. Fisher.

The one held before Judge Fisher was that on the death of Daisy E. Higson, aged six years and eight months, who was struck and killed by an automobile operated by Charles H. Ellwood of North Billerica on June 20.

An inquest was also held on the death of Edwin E. Rockwell of Manchester, N. H., who while trying to board a freight train in the rear of Livingston's coal yard dropped under the wheels and suffered injuries which resulted in his death a few hours later.

Jeremiah Moynihan, aged 37, a fireman in the employ of the Boston & Maine railroad, was struck by a passenger train in the vicinity of School street crossing on June 2.

Alx Chodakowski, aged six years, was killed in Lakeview avenue, in the vicinity of Parker avenue, Dracut, on June 18. The boy with a companion was coasting down the street in a small wagon when they crossed in front of an electric car and before the motor-man could apply the brakes the car struck the wagon and instantly killed the boy.

VILLA PLEDGED TO SUPPORT CARRANZA

Possibility of War With United States Said to Have Healed the Breach Between Two Factions in Mexican Politics — 10,000 Mexican Troops Concentrated at Bustillos

EL PASO, Tex., June 27.—Evidence that the possibility of war with the United States has healed the breach between the Carranza and Villa factions in Mexican politics continued to increase here today. More than 100 wealthy Mexicans who, prior to the surrender of the Villa garrison of Juarez last January had been active in supporting the bandit leader and who since have been refugees in El Paso, crossed the Rio Grande and apparently were received in good favor by authorities of the de facto government.

Hand bills printed in Spanish asserting that Villa himself had been pledged to support the Carranza government in the event of a break with the United States were circulated in Juarez and to some extent in the Mexican quarter of El Paso. All reports indicated, however, that the bandit chieftain has not yet joined the constitutional forces, but with a body of his troops is somewhere in the Rio Florida district of southern Chihuahua, awaiting developments in the crisis.

Gen. Manuel Medina, formerly Villa's chief of staff and Gen. Jose Ysabel Robles, minister of war in the Guiterrez cabinet were guests today of Gen. Francisco Gonzales, commandant in Juarez. It was reported here that they are to be assigned to important commands in Gen. Trevino's army of the north.

Private notices here today said that several hundred men of the force of 10,000 Mexican troops which have been concentrated at Bustillos, 70 miles west of Chihuahua City, for the ostensible purpose of blocking any attempted American advance down the Mexico Northwestern railway toward the capital, formerly were members of bandit bands, scattered and broken by Gen. Pershing's troops. Operating in conjunction with them it was said, are the commands of Calixto, Contreras and Canuto Reyes, former Villa leaders, who recently were granted amnesty by Gen. Trevino. Well informed Mexicans here said that the bandit bands, scattered and broken by the Cientificos' faction, the former wealthy land holders of the republic, are still under the ban of the de facto government. Gen. Marcelo Caraveo, former Orozco leader and adherent of Huerta, is now occupying a command at the Mexican field base at Ahumada.

With the American demands before Carranza, the heaviest guard yet maintained was bivouacked about the two international bridges last night. From the Mexican side came reports that virtually the entire former garrison was withdrawn to Villa. Ahumada, 85 miles south, is said a large command is entrenched there. Two troop trains to one of which is attached Gen. Gonzales' private car and two cars of food stuffs, are waiting in Juarez to carry the remnant of the garrison to the field base should hostilities develop. Preparations for the recognition of the state troops and the two additional batteries of the Fifth Field Artillery under orders to take station in El Paso continued today. It was expected that the first of the new soldiers will arrive here some time tomorrow.

account does not say whether the bandit did or recovered.

Villa, the Mexican deserter said, exhibited every evidence of terror during the early stages of his fight after the Americans had killed his men at Guerrero. The informant said he believed Villa was dead, but if he is still alive, he is in the state of Durango, for which point he was heading during his fight from General Pershing's attack.

BITTER ATTACK ON U. S.

AT RIO JANEIRO, BRAZIL

RIO JANEIRO, June 27.—The keen interest with which Brazil is following the developments of the crisis between the United States and Mexico received a new impetus today following a spirited discussion in the chamber of deputies during which an opposition deputy made a bitter attack on the United States.

The discussion was opened by this deputy who, commenting on the last week's attack on the Brazilian coast by the United States, declared, he was astonished that the United States should make difficulties in accepting the explanations of Mexico while promptly accepting those of Germany in regard to the submarine war. The speaker asserted that Germany was continuing its underhanded campaign in violation of its promise to Washington and that the United States did not dare to protest. He concluded by expressing the hope that Brazil would continue to maintain its traditions by defending the people of the sovereignty of all countries without regard to the economic or military strength of any nation.

Deputy Souza e Bastos, speaking for the government, defended the international policy of the administration and declared that Brazil stood firmly for the solidarity and fraternity of the American nations.

Deputy Souza e Bastos, who has taken Dr. Lauro Muller's place as minister of foreign affairs during the latter's absence from the country, questioned in regard to the attitude of Brazil in the present crisis, said that the government had entered into no negotiation but, in common with all American nations, was watching the situation with the anxious hope that a peaceful solution would be found.

GOVERNOR'S FAREWELL

McCALL BIDS DEPARTING BAY STATE TROOPS GODSPEED AT CAMP WHITNEY

Governor McCall bade farewell to the Bay State troops at Camp Whitney as they were about to depart for the Mexican border yesterday. He said: "A solemn occasion exists which in the opinion of the president of the United States requires you at once to leave your homes and go forth to serve your country. Your mobilization has been accomplished with all the speed possible under the circumstances. More than might well have been spent to perfect your condition but the call of the head of the nation is the supreme call and it finds you ready to respond. It is a series of moments when you take yourselves from your firesides, your kindred and your friends to render service which may be full of hardship and danger. But whatever ship came to you I feel sure that you will acquit yourselves like men and show yourselves fit comrades with the brave men of the Massachusetts of other days. Not merely the commonwealth, but the whole country will stand behind you."

A shot fired at an American soldier, who ever he of right is in the performance of his duty, is a shot fired at the American home. While you will be ready to dare greatly, we may be sure that there will be no act of inhumanity on your part to tarnish the most brilliant victory or sully the honor of your flag."

Your prompt response puts a duty upon every one in the commonwealth to care for those who are dependent upon you and upon those who will be quick to follow you if the call shall come. Remember that you are the soldiers of a great and civilized nation that you are the citizens of a commonwealth with a proud history. Show yourselves worthy of both.

"On behalf of all the people of the commonwealth, I bid you farewell and Godspeed."

CITY HALL NEWS HIS LIFE SAVED

Municipal Council Deals With Pole Locations and Garage Petitions

In the absence of Mayor O'Donnell, who attended the exercises of graduation at the Vocational school, Commissioner William W. Duncan, the council president, presided at the regular meeting of the municipal council this forenoon. Only routine business was transacted. The council will hold a special meeting tomorrow to take action on coal contracts.

A hearing on the ordinance presented by the board of trade relative to the elimination of shingles and other combustible roof coverings was set for June 11 at 10 a. m.

The chairman read a communication from C. Kirkpatrick remonstrating against the location of a pole in front of his premises No. 20 June street. He objected to a pole in front of his premises though the petitioner for the pole was not other than his own tenant, who wants a telephone installed. The tenant, too, is a gentleman of the cloth, but Mr. Kirkpatrick says he would prefer a vacant tenement to a pole near 20 June street. Mr. Kirkpatrick is perfectly willing to have a pole located on the rear line of his property, and he says he does not wish to be arbitrary in the matter, but he feels it would lessen the value of his property at least $500 if the location is granted.

"While the tenant I now have, and would be more than pleased to keep, wants this pole," he said in his letter, "I would much rather have him vacate than allow the pole to be placed in front of my residence."

The petitioner was given leave to withdraw.

The petition of the Lowell Electric Light corporation for a pole location in Middlesex street, between Canton and Stevens streets, was read and an order adopted.

The petition of the Lowell Electric Light corporation for permission to relocate a pole and attach ten wires thereto at the corner of Gorham and Summer streets, was read and order adopted.

The petition of the Lowell Electric Light corporation for permission to erect and maintain one pole on Wellington avenue, between Rogers street and Hoyt avenue, was read and a hearing ordered for July 11.

The petitions of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for permission to erect and maintain three poles on Beaver street, west from Lakeview avenue, one pole in Grosvenor street, near Middlesex street; four poles on Brookside avenue between Woodward avenue and Varnum avenue, and three poles on Canby street, west from Lakeview avenue, were read and hearings ordered July 11.

The petition of the Pitts Auto Supply Co. to keep, store and sell gasoline at 7 and 9 Hurd street, was read and a hearing ordered for July 13. The same date was set for hearings on the petition of John Scholes for a garage and gasoline permit in Hale street, between James A. Brien, garage, Livingston avenue and Westford street.

The petitions of Rev. Caleb E. Fisher and William D. Brown and others for ornamental arc street lamps in Hurd street were read and referred to Mr. Morse.

Hearings were held today on the petition of Carrie Lindsay for a garage in Bagley avenue, and Daniel O'Dea garage and gasoline, Middlesex street. There were no remonstrants and the petitions were referred.

It was voted that the city solicitor be authorized to sign for and accept of the city auditor's tenth report on grand crossing disbursements, the amount to be paid being $35.70.

It was voted that the bond, which has just been presented by the National Engineering corporation to the city of Lowell, referring to work on the new Pawtucket bridge, be accepted. The bond was by the National Surety Co. of New York, and was approved by the city solicitor. The amount was $25,000.

Freight Jumper Has Narrow Escape — Police Court Cases

Joseph Fitzgerald, aged 36 years, who has resided in Westford for the past year, but who claims Canton, Mass., as his home, is one of the luckiest men in this city at the present time. Although he occupied a seat in the dock in the police station if it had not been for John Murphy, a crossing tender at the Middlesex street station, Fitzgerald would probably be reclining in a casket today.

Fitzgerald attempted to jump a freight near the depot, and just about the place where Edwin E. Rockwell was run over last week. He got fairly good hold on the iron rungs on the side of the car, but was unable to draw his feet up and was dragging along the rails when Mr. Murphy rushed out from the flag shanty and seized him.

In court this morning Fitzgerald informed the court that he did not drink steadily, but when he got several drinks he went to his head. Upon promising that he would do better in the future his case was placed on file.

Drunk Offenders

John A. Smith and John E. Kelly were each sentenced to two months in jail. Frederick J. Marshall and Albert M. Spalding were sentenced to the state farm but the sentence was suspended.

The case of William J. Sheehan was continued until Saturday, and Edward J. Sullivan was given ten days in jail. Maurice J. Barry was ordered to pay a fine of $8.

Granwood, chaplain, reading the leading parts in response to all the brethren. Cohorn S. Smith was master. Mr. Wright was a charter member of Shawheen lodge. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Mr. Edwin T. Shaw under the direction of Undertaker George W. Healey.

Royal K. Dexter, George B. Holden, Willis E. Hatch, D. E. Yarnall, Allen H. Noyes and Charles Richardson. Burial was in the family lot in the Lowell cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Mr. Edwin T. Shaw under the direction of Undertaker George W. Healey.

CORCORAN.—The funeral of the late John P. Corcoran took place this morning at 9.30 from the funeral parlors of M. H. UNITED STATES ACCUSED OF PERFDY BY MEXICANS

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—Foreign Minister Aguilar made public today messages sent to Latin-American countries in which the government of the United States is accused of perfidy and of concentrating troops along the border with hostile purposes toward Mexico. The messages are in answer to communications from South American countries offering their services to mediate between the United States and Mexico.

The messages say that after the incident at Matamoros the United States began to gather its armed forces along the international line with the intention of aggression against Mexico. It is asserted that Mexico is not seeking war but that it is forced to fight in order to go to the last extreme of the "blood of its sons and the destruction of its wealth."

The messages conclude by stating that the "perfidy" of the American government not only affects Mexico but all Latin countries on this continent. It is added that Eliseo Arredondo, Mexican ambassador designate at Washington, has been instructed to get in touch with his Latin-American colleagues, who have offered to mediate and do everything in their power to prevent war. The final sentence of the messages read:
